Mourn With the Babe
Mr. A. E. Smith Consents
Fattening Germs
Wall Street Smiles

By Arthur Brisbane

"BABE" RUTH, baseball player whose salary has been cut $10,000 a year, can sympathize with the English lady, told that the war made it impossible to supply her pet's dog biscuit. She remarked:

"This war has ceased to be a joke."

"Babe" Ruth probably thinks our financial situation has ceased to be a joke.

On the other hand, if he accepts the cut, he will get $70,000 a year in place of $80,000, with a long rest in winter, and will probably decide that things might be worse.

The political news is the statement that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith "would not object to the use of his name as a candidate for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket in state primaries."

Whether or not Mr. Smith is to be nominated, the announcement puts a new complexion on the 1932 fight. The individual that might be held responsible for keeping Mr. Smith from the nomination could not get a two-thirds vote in the convention, or a very big popular vote afterwards.

Dr. Rentschler of the Westinghouse Laboratories enumerates interesting scientific achievements of 1932. Discovering the last of the missing elements, we now possess all the ninety odd substances of which everything in the universe is composed. Later we may discover that the ninety odd are variations of only one substance, or form of motion.

The production of 10,000 degrees of heat Fahrenheit with a great burning glass shows that the story about Archimedes arranging to burn enemy ships in the harbor with a glass concentrating the sun's rays, might be true, although it probably is not.

Producing an electric current of 18,000,000 volts that may help to break down the atom interests scientists.

By feeding them up they are made fat, and can be seen under the microscope. By cutting down their food supply they become invisible, which seems to be the ambition of some of our young ladies.

New York Central, that sold above $250 two years ago, has crawled up from the low mark of $24 a share to $33. Someone bought more than 60,000 shares yesterday. Government bonds were strong, thanks to Secretary Mellon's firm stand on the matter of preserving national credit.

Secretary Mellon hears himself accused in Congress of being interested in American business on a big scale. Somebody wants to impeach him because, before he took office, he was able to accumulate a few hundred millions of dollars.

Whom would they have as Secretary of the Treasury, somebody that can prove that he has always been unable to make a living?

Before President Harding was inaugurated, he told this writer at St. Augustine, in Florida, "I am going to nominate the second richest man in the world for Secretary of the Treasury. What do you think the public will say to that?"

This writer, who didn't know who the second richest man in the world was, or the first richest man either, expressed the opinion that the people would be glad to have the national finances in the hands of somebody acquainted with finances.

From the mosque of El Aksa, in Jerusalem, where it had reposed for many centuries, there has been stolen an ancient, written volume of the Koran, valued at $100,000.

When he was on earth, 1300 years ago, Mohammed would have attended to such a matter by performing the necessary miracle. He did that often, and sent for angels 10 times as big as any of our skyscrapers.

The Jerusalem mosque whence the Koran volume was stolen was within 40 years as old as the Kaaba shrine, in Mecca, that every good Mohammedan must visit. The mosque's importance is proved by the fact that Allah transported Mohammed from Mecca to Jerusalem in one single night.

It would surprise the prophet, Allah also, to know that any good flier can make the journey now in less time.

This was former Governor Alfred E. Smith's comment today when asked about a statement in the New York Evening Post that he would allow his name to be used in the Massachusetts primaries.

Thrilled by the enthusiasm shown by Massachusetts Democrats at the Victory banquet, and the cordial reception Boston gave him, he went to the Trumbull Hospital in Brookline this morning to see Frank J. Donahue, Democratic state chairman and national committeeman, but found Donahue too ill to see him.

He was the center of attention at the hospital, and received fresh ovations upon leaving and returning to the Hotel Statler.

SENDS WORD OF CHEER

Mrs. Donahue, whose husband has a stomach ailment, accompanied Gov. Smith to the hospital and went to the sickroom while the other members of the party waited downstairs. Returning, she said:

"Frank is somewhat better but the doctors left word that it would be best if nobody was allowed to see him."

Disappointed, but leaving a verbal message of encouragement for his friend, Smith returned to the hotel in his car, which had a motorcycle escort of three policemen, attracting attention all along the route.

In the party were Louis E. Kirstein, the merchant and philanthropist; John J. Curtin of New York, John H. Fahey of Worcester, Daniel J. Mooney of New York

AL SMITH'S SON HELD IN DEATH

New York, Jan. 15 (AP)—Walter J. Smith, 22, son of former Governor Alfred E. Smith, was arrested early today on a technical charge of homicide as the result of an automobile accident.

The automobile he was driving struck and killed Harry Wallace, 55, at the intersection of 128th st. and Lexington ave. Wallace, police said, was crossing the street against traffic lights.

Smith was accompanied by Frances R. Smith, formerly of Malden, Mass., and said to be a relative, when the accident occurred.

Young Smith told police Wallace stepped in front of the car. He stopped the machine, placed Wallace in the car and drove with him to Harlem hospital. The hospital authorities notified the police of the mishap and Detective Michael Minitor arrested Smith.

Smith spent most of the night in the detectives room but his identity was not realized for several hours by police reporters because of an error in the original report to police headquarters.

"My son, Alfred, is taking care of the situation," former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York said today, when told of the arrest of his son, Walter J., on a homicide charge.

He said he received word of the accident by telephone.

STONE LAID FOR NEW P.O. BUILDING

Many Notables Attend Exercises; Kin of Old-Time Postmaster Present

While a crowd of several thousand looked on, the cornerstone of the new Boston post office and Federal courts building was laid today.

Notables of city, State and nation delivered addresses and the navy yard band played, but the ceremonies were brief and simple.

The stone was laid at what will be the front of the building in Post Office sq. In its vault were placed coins, parchments, newspapers and other articles as a record of today for some future generation.

Prominent among the guests were Mrs. G. C. Brown and her sister, Miss Emma Burt, both of 28 Center st., Brookline, daughters of the late Gen. William L. Burt, who was postmaster in Boston 40 years ago.

The sisters, then about 10 years old, witnessed the laying of the cornerstone of the old postoffice on October 16, 1871, when President U. S. Grant officiated, and Vice-President Colfax was also present.

BONES MAY BE THOSE OF FLIER

Find Part of Skeleton at Plum Island Near Point Where Plane Parts Were Seen

Newburyport, Jan. 15—Part of a human skeleton—a spine, a hip-bone and the bones of a leg—was found today on the beach sands of Plum Island, 300 yards south of Plum Island coast guard station.

The skeleton, discovered by Surfman Maurice C. Beal, was only a short distance from where, four months ago, a 15-foot section of a cabin seaplane fuselage, believed to be part of an ill-fated trans-atlantic plane, was found on the beach.

This fuselage section, because of lack of numbers or of markings, could not be identified.

The skeleton, which may be the remains of one of the many lost trans-Atlantic fliers, or the remains of one of two fishermen drowned off Newburyport Harbor early last fall, was turned over to Medical Examiner Randolph C. Hurd.

2 ARRESTED IN MALDEN BREAK

Patrolman John F. McCallan's keen hearing resulted in the arrest of two youths early today charged with attempting to break into a chain store in Charles st., Malden.

They are William A. Fraser, 16, of Monument st., West Medford, and Vincent P. Tracy, 18, of Charles st., Malden, formerly of Medford. In Malden court they were held in $500 each for hearing Wednesday.

McCallan, off duty shortly after midnight, was on his way home when he heard what sounded like nails being drawn from wood.

Going to the rear of the store, he captured Fraser, who, he said, was standing on a box and attempting to remove the door transom.

3 HELD AS SUSPECTS IN GANG SLAYING

Taken From Boylston St. Building to Headquarters for Questioning

BULLETIN

Three suspects in the new gang murder were arrested today in a downtown Boylston st. building believed to be used as a bootlegging headquarters. They were taken to headquarters for questioning.

Harry Wolen, 26, of New York, was the victim of last night's gang murder, according to identification made today.

Police said he was a rum racketeer here and in New York and a close friend of "Big Jack" Rodman, who was slain in the Back Bay last year. He previously had been identified as Harry Brown, alias Davis.

With the correct identification, which was made by his father, Jacob Wolen, who arrived from New York, some of the mystery surrounding last night's Westhrop shooting, in which Wolen was slain and two others were wounded, was cleared away.

Police said Jack Berger, no known address, the wounded man who was thrown or jumped from a speeding car in Winthrop, told Mrs. Catherine Derco, one of the Winthrop girls who took him to the hospital:

"If I die you tell my mother that Harry Wolen of New York shot me."

MORE MARINES WILL JOIN FORCES IN NICARAGUA

EXTRA GUARD ORDERED FOR ELECTIONS

New Contingent Will Comprise 400 Men; Force to Return After the Polls

By HOBART C. MONTEE
International News Correspondent
(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service)

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Secretary Adams said today additional marines would be sent to Nicaragua to help supervise the elections. Adams said the additional troops would be a "necessity" during the elections.

Washington, Jan. 15 (INS)—The United States is planning soon to increase the strength of American armed forces in Nicaragua.

It is expected that a force of from 300 to 500 marines or bluejackets will be sent to augment the approximately 1000 marines there.

GUARD ELECTIONS

Their specific purpose will be to assure a peaceful, orderly general election, scheduled for next fall. After the election and the induction of the newly elected government into office, these special troops will be withdrawn.

Announcement to this effect has been withheld, for several reasons:

1—The strengthening of our forces there, even for a limited period, constitutes a reversal of the administration's announced policy to withdraw the Marines from Nicaragua at the earliest possible time.

2—Any announcement of an increase in American forces in Nicaragua, for whatever purpose, was considered likely to be criticized in other Latin-American countries.

DUTY OF NATION

The United States is obligated, under an agreement with the Nicaraguan Government, to supervise the coming elections, and President Hoover has nominated Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward as his personal representative during their preparation. The Supreme Court of Nicaragua has appointed Admiral Woodward as president of the national board of elections.

Sandino Forces Beaten by Nicaraguan Troops

Colon, Panama, Jan. 15 (INS)—A severe clash between Nicaraguan bandits under Gen. Augustino Sandino and a detachment of Nicaraguan national guard was reported by messages received here from Bluefields today.

The battle occurred in the Coco river section. The bandits were driven off with heavy losses.

SENATE BALKED IN LOAN PROBE

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Assistant Secretary White of the State Department again today refused to furnish the Senate finance committee with correspondence relating to the Baro Oil concession.

He again offered to let committee members see the papers confidentially.

Senator Johnson (R.), California, had asked for the communications. He pointed out it would be impossible to cross-examine White if the correspondence were given confidentially.

White has testified the State Department interceded with American bankers for a loan to Colombia on the basis of messages from the American legation that President Olaya was dissatisfied with the bankers' failure to make the loan.

He also said some of the messages pointed out Olaya bel dstat one of the things he had done was to restore the valuable oil concession to the Mellon-controlled Gulf Oil Company.

The ever gracious mayor of Boston, whose "eloquent voice and virile personality" were mentioned in his introduction, paid tribute to Mrs. Smith, who was warmly applauded. Tuck again led the cheers and again when the telegram from Governor Roosevelt was read.

The clock in the banquet hall was fast. The mayor was allotted 15 minutes and spoke by his own watch. "Toastmaster-General Cole was going by the wall clock and became worried. The mayor was about two-thirds finished when Cole called his attention to the time. The mayor said, "I've got five minutes left; I'm going to finish." But he didn't give all his speech. He left out about three pages.

* * *

Governor Ely, the following speaker, began with an expression of delight in having yielded "nearly 10 minutes of my time" to the mayor. He didn't appear very delighted. A voice called: "This is Democratic Boston, Jim," apparently addressed to the mayor. Another voice answered: "This is Democratic Massachusetts, too."

Somebody tipped the orchestra leader that the next President would be a Democrat and the early selections included, "Happy Days Are Here Again," "Blow Your Troubles Away" and "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag." "The Sidewalks of New York" arrived with the soup and was the signal for a spontaneous outburst of applause. Then John F. Fitzgerald sang "Sweet Adeline" and all was well.

The telegram from Spenker Garner, who Mr. Howard believes will be a good President, got a big hand. So, too, did the wires from Ritchie and Roosevelt, so apparently it's anybody's nomination so far as Boston is concerned.

DeWitt DeWolf was accompanied by his charming daughter, Virginia, and as they passed the table where pat . dit, Gen. John Agnew in full uniform, Miss DeWolf smiled her prettiest. But that's all right; they're engaged.

All the Democratic mayors of Greater Boston were present. The two administration Hurleys sat side by each at the head table.

Leopold M. Goulston did a real job. He managed the whole affair.

Among the bright and shining faces early on hand were those of Judge Frank S. Deland (an Allen appointee, by the way), John Jackson Walsh (candidate for governor a decade ago), Leo M. Richard, son of Joseph (Ely) arrived late. He will learn with the passing of the years that there is nothing more important than a Democratic powwow.

FINAL ACTION ON 2-BILLION BILL IS NEAR

Relief Measures Will Start as Soon as the Funds Are Available for Use

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Victory awaited today the reconstruction corporation bill, greatest of the measures in President Hoover's program for bringing the country's business on an even keel once more.

The House took it up again under agreement to vote on it within the day. Its overwhelming approval was confidently expected.

A short interlude is ahead before the corporation actually organizes for business, as the Senate passed the bill in somewhat different form from that before the House. But in satisfactorily smoothing over of these differences to both branches of Congress and to President Hoover was expected to be no great trouble, despite numerous controversial points involved.

TO SPEED RELIEF

There no time will be lost by the President in naming the directors, whose approval by the Senate also is expected to consume little time. The treasury will turn over $500,000,000 of working capital and the organization will be ready to expand its resources to two billions, making loans to railroads, financial institutions, life insurance companies and other vital businesses which now possess too little cash through a freezing of the values behind them.

OTHER BILLS READY

The second of the Hoover reconstruction bills, loosening capital tied up in farm loans, already is undergoing the conference process to bring Senate and House together. Other bills, one to set up a home loan bank system, another to make possible return of deposits held in closed banks, were started in Senate and House committee sessions, with early consideration and passage in sight.

WOLEN TWICE IN POLICE TOILS

Harry Wolen, suspected racketeer, who was slain in the Winthrop shooting last night, had been taken into custody twice by Boston police, according to headquarters records.

On Jan. 20, of last year, he and another man were arrested in a Back Bay hotel charged with larceny and the possession of weapons. They were subsequently acquitted. Wolen was also picked up as a suspicious person in 1918, records show.

Police found several guns and a quantity of ammunition in Wolen's hotel room when they went there on a tip a machine gun had been concealed there.

During the investigation which followed Wolen was found to have a permit to carry a gun, but this was later proved to be a forgery.

Investigation revealed an unidentified person had secured a block of permits from the department of public safety in the name of a Chelsea Judge. Wolen had one of these. Despite this evidence he was later freed.

MOTHER, 3 NEAR DEATH BY GAS

Haverhill, Jan. 15—A mother and three small children narrowly escaped death early today when overcome by gas from a heater.

The timely arrival of a neighbor saved them.

The victims, in Gale Hospital, all in a serious condition, are Mrs. Effie Goudas and George, 2; Soula, 4, and Stella, 6.

Mrs. Sophine Michoson, who lives on the second floor, was aroused from sleep by the children who rushed downstairs, broke down a door and found all four unconscious.

She opened the windows and sent for the police. By use of a respirator all four were revived and taken to the hospital.

Dog Near Drowning Saved by Firemen

Lowell, Jan. 15—Firemen from the Lincoln st. station rushed down to Hale's brook early last evening in response to a telephone alarm and found a dog struggling to keepafloat in the icy stream. The canine had broken through the ice and was unable to get near shore, so the fireman put a ladder out and brought the animal to shore where it shook itself off, wagged its tail appreciatively, and then galloped off home.

wounded, Arthur DeLucci, alias Valucci, alias Fiore, also of New York, started out from Boston for Winthrop on a hijacking job and that a fight developed among them.

Wolen and one of the two men engaged in a gun duel at close range in Wolen's hurtling sedan, police believe. Berger was tossed out in Winthrop and Wolen was found dead in the abandoned car in East Boston. Police think DeLucci may have been an accidental victim of the battle. He has intimates that he was.

Inspectors Madden, Di Sessa, Augusta and Rollins of headquarters were rushed to Massachusetts General Hospital to question the wounded men following the identification of Wolen.

Delucci said:

"They didn't intend to get me but I won't live long anyway. Get out!"

Berger said:

"You don't expect me to squawk, so leave me alone."

To Inspector Lennessey he stated:

"Davis (Wolen) is the only man I know in Boston. If Davis is dead the same man that shot him shot me. I'll say no more."

Wolen's father and mother and brother, Herman, came here as the result of a secret notification which police have not traced. Wolen said his son was a salesman and that his home was at 219 W. 80th st., New York, that he had been in New York over the week-end and returned to Boston early this week.

The identification was made at the morgue after Wolen's family had visited Capt. Archie Campbell at the East Boston station and the brother had refused to give any information. Capt. Campbell directed a plain clothes officer to trail the family.

BOOK GIVES CLUES

Although police had at first no known address for Berger except one in Belmont, where he had stayed only a few days around about Christmas time, they established today that for two years he had boarded at 151 Poplar st., Chelsea, with Mrs. Esther Fish, who identified his photograph.

She said he told her he worked in a Boston department store. Police searched him room and found a book which contained what they said were addresses of bootleggers. Two were in Winthrop and police went there.

Police met on every hand an attitude of defiance while an aroused community demanded the end of gang murders. Last night's was the third in 23 days here.

Boston police stepped in to direct the investigation although the shootings occured in Winthrop.

POLICE DRIVEN AWAY

They asked Everett police to go to the Union st house, where Wolen has lived off and on for three years when he has stopped at the Hotel Manger. The went there and four men, who had arrived at the house after the shooting, commanded to know whether they had search warrants.

"Have you got warrants to search this joint?" one of the men asked police. The patrolmen admitted they didn't have.

"Then scram!" the police were ordered. They "scrammed" and the house remained unsearched until afternoon today.

It was reported that Wolen's family had gone to Everett and Boston police planned to go there to question them.

HIJACKING THEORY

An exploded .32 calibre revolver cartridge was found today by William Austin, since 1926 a sergeant of police said they believed that hijacking activities in the vicinity of Winthrop, where much booze has been landed, stored and hijacked recently, were behind the activities of the three men who figured in the shooting.

Wolen was found crumpled in the front seat of his parked car in Saratoga st., East Boston, about an hour later. Deluca appeared in the vicinity of the North Station at about 8 p. m. He was rushed to the Massachusetts General Hospital by a Brookline attorney.

DRIVER WOUNDED

A startling announcement came from the lips of Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath, pathologist, shortly after he reached the death car in East Boston. "Police had believed Wolen was alone when the shooting the car and were non-plussed with Magrath's statement. "The driver of the car was badly wounded."

He pointed out that the steering wheel was smeared with blood, unlike that of Wolen. Wolen had been shot behind the right ear, and only slight trickles of blood came from the wound, Dr. Magrath said.

Another development in the probe was the raising of the question of jurisdiction. Decision that the shooting had occured in Winthrop led police to turn over the probe to that town. It was then learned that Winthrop police were either unable to conduct the probe or unaware oven that the shooting had taken place.

GANGSTERS SOUGHT

Chief William A. McNeil was in bed and unaware of the shooting. Lieut. James M. Douglas, next in command, was sick in bed and unable to conduct the probe. Sergt. Donovan was the only Winthrop officer working on the case and he retired about 3 a. m. along with other officials.

Sergt. James Lewis was the only officer to work on the case after 2 a. m. He spent all night and early today seeking two gangsters known to be friendly to DeLucca, who were missing last night from their usual haunts in Maverick sq., East Boston.

Wholen was the first of the gun victims to attract police attention, although East Boston police had been seeking his car for almost half an hour before his body was found. The machine sped past a traffic officer in Orient Heights without lights. A motorcycle officer gave chase, but lost the sedan in a mass of traffic.

BOYS GIVE CLUE

At 7:35 p. m. two small boys approached Sergt. Granville Spinney and told him a man was "sick" in a car on Saratoga st. The body was identified later by Harry Minsk of 29 Union st., Everett, who said Wolen had a room at his home, but rarely occupied it. He was engaged in the clothing business, but was also "mixed up in some racket," Minsk told police.

Berger was picked up near the scene of the shooting by Miss Marion Gentin, 18, and Mrs. Carl De Roo, 21, both of Winthrop. They saw his body pitch from the sedan after muffled shots were heard. He crawled to them and begged them to take him to a hospital. He told the women Harry Wolen of New York shot him and that Harry Cohen, recently slain in New York, was the cause of it.

He refused to answer any questions and was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital after being treated at the Winthrop Community Hospital.

It was learned that his Belmont address was that of Theodore Rockwell, at whose home Berger roomed for a week before Christmas.

DeLucca was traced from the North Station back to the State st. subway station, and police believe he arrived there by the East Boston tunnel. He was accompanied by a companion, who disappeared when they reached the North Station. He was taken to the hospital by Atty. Sylvester Kaufman of Brookline, who found the wounded man entering his auto.

WEAPON FOUND

At about 11 p. m. a pearl handled .32 revolver, all chambers empty, was found near the shooting scene by Mrs. Margaret McLaughlin, of Walnut ave. and Mrs. Catherine Caulfield, of Revere st. The women took the revolver home and turned it over to police when they heard of the shooting.

Dr. Magrath also found a .32 spent bullet about 30 yards from the scene of the shooting. He stated from Berger's abdomen and the spent bullet corresponded and were from the gun found near the scene.

WIFE BRANDED TO INSURE LOVE

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 15 (INS)—Believing he could thus insure his wife's love for himself, Wilfred Tauffener, 24, branded his initials on her body with a hot electric curling iron, he told police today.

Each letter seared into her flesh was two inches high, he admitted.

Tauffener was arrested on a charge of forging a check in the name of a fellow-employe of an automobile service company and while being questioned confessed the "love branding."

TAX ON FOREIGN INCOME ASKED

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—A broad tax program, one point of which would tap the income flowing from American investments in foreign countries, was put before the House Ways and Means Committee today by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Chester H. Gray, Washington representative of the federation, estimated his program would produce $1,500,000,000 annually.

Other points on his program included:

Increasing the corporation income tax rates from 12 to 15 per cent; integrating and increasing the rates of the estate and gift taxes to bring in a billion dollars a year instead of $12,000,000; and increasing personal income taxes in the upper brackets and reaching lower income earners by lower exemptions.

He favored $1000 exemption for a single person and $2000 for a married man and $300 exemptions for dependents.

He expressed opposition to a general sales tax and to select sales or miscellaneous taxes except in the extreme emergencies.

Senator Love

He said he was inspired by Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who appointed as a prison trustee, a man who had served three years in the institution for manslaughter.

LIEUT. MASSIE PLEADS FOR SPEEDY TRIAL IN 'HONOR SLAYING'

WANTS TO EASE STRAIN ON MRS. FORTESCUE

Honolulu Governor to Press for Death Penalty in Cases of Criminal Attack

Honolulu, Jan. 15 (INS)—Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, held with his mother-in-law and two naval enlisted men for the "honor slaying" of a native suspected of attacking his wife, today pleaded for a speedy trial.

Lieut. Massie's attempt to hasten action in the case came after the prosecution announced that the grand jury might not be called into action until next week.

Montgomery Winn, defense attorney, said Lieut. Massie was anxious for an early trial in order to relieve the nervous strain on Mrs. Granville Fortescue, his mother-in-law, held with Massie and the two enlisted men aboard the S. S. Alton for the revenge killing of Joseph Kahahawai.

Gov. Lawrence M. Judd, meanwhile, prepared a program of reform to be introduced in the special session of the territorial Legislature in an effort to clean up conditions on the islands.

In the face of completed plans by the Department of Justice in Washington for a sweeping investigation of the islands, Judd replied to congressional charges of laxity by denying that conditions on the islands were as serious as had been painted.

Included in the program for the special session of the Legislature will be a bill increasing the penalty for criminal assault to death or life imprisonment, permitting the judge the alternative.

Honolulu appeared more calm today, although there was no relaxation of police vigilance. No arrests have been made as yet in the native quarters despite rumors that individuals of mixed blood had plotted in an effort to seize by main force the four Massie case defendants from the custody of the navy.

TORNADO KILLS 10 OF FAMILY

Trenton, Tenn., Jan. 15 (AP)—Ten members of a family were killed and three injured when a tornado whipped through two farming communities, bowling over house and barns.

The dead:

P. W. Rice, 45; Mrs. Rice; Opal Rice, 17; Hazel, 14; Edith, 9; James E., 4; Horace, 10; P. W. Rice, Jr., 9; a six-months-old baby, and Elsie McDaniel, 3, grandaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rice.

The family lived near Lex.

Ten or twelve buildings in or near Lex and Eaton were destroyed.

The home of Joe Webb, farmer, living near Eaton, was moved 20 feet and his barn torn away. A number of houses were reported demolished in a negro community between Lex and Eaton.

Twenty rum-runners went out to meet a mother ship off the New England coast today and 18 Coast Guard rum chasers went out to play tag with them and prevent landing of the liquor.

The rum runners, fast speed "contact" boats' pushed out from the vicinity of New London, Ct., according to information received by the coast guard, whose stations along the entire New England coast were warned.

Eighteen fast rum chasers pushed out from the New London and New York coast guard base, with a possibility that Boston rum chasers might go out if the rum runners were driven to the northern strip of shore in search of landing places.

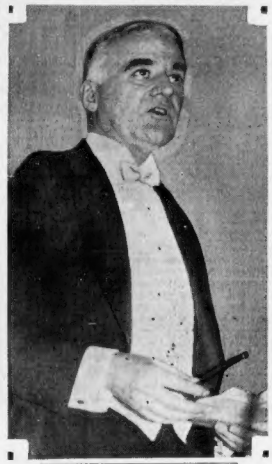
JOHN F. FITZGERALD MRS. NELLIE M. SULLIVAN FRANCIS X. HURLEY CHAS. HURLEY MAYOR CURLEY GEN. CHARLES H. COLE FORMER GOV. SMITH LEOPOLD GOULSTON GOVERNOR ELY WILLIAM ROGERS

A tremendous ovation was given Alfred Emmanuel Smith by Bay State Democrats last night, during the Massachusetts Democratic Victory Dinner at the Hotel Statler. The titular leader of his party is shown as he gave an enthusiastic address.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald went back into his old role as song leader. He is shown as he sang "Sweet Adeline." Of course, "Fitz" followed with "East Side, West Side" in honor of the New Yorker—Al Smith. The gathering joined in the song which has become known as the battle hymn of the "Happy Warrior" of New York.



Gen. Charles H. Cole, one of Massachusetts' noted Democratic leaders, was one of the speakers. You see him as he said "The exercises will close with the singing of America, led by Mr. Fitzgerald." Gen. Cole was one of the committee which welcomed ex-Gov. Smith to the city.

A ringing address was delivered by Mrs. Jessie Wilson Sayre, daughter of the late Woodrow Wilson. She is shown chatting with Leopold M. Goulston, toastmaster of the evening. Mrs. Sayre had the pleasure of hearing former Gov. Smith pay a stirring tribute to her illustrious father at the opening of his "victory speech." She in turn paid tribute to the candidate of 1928.

Al Smith and Mrs. Al smiled for the Democrats and friends of Providence, R. I., as the train that brought them to Boston halted for a few minutes. That Smith smile was brought right into Boston.

This unusual pose shows you Governor Ely and Mayor Curley, as they whispered during the busy moments of last night. The mayor directly preceded the Governor on the speaking program. Both called for united action to bring victory.

Included among those who sat about this table with Mrs. Alfred E. Smith were Louis E. Kirstein, A. I., Filene, Mrs. Kirstein, Mr. and Mrs. Curtan, Daniel J. Mooney, Miss Virginia De Wolf and Dewitt C. De Wolf. Mooney accompanied the former governor from New York. Mrs. Smith was given a reception nearly as great as that accorded her husband at the banquet. She listened closely to all the speeches made during the evening.

At Councillor Cox's office today it was said word had been received the girl was resting comfortably.

A physician said he had died of heart failure.

WIDOW FALLS 3 STORIES; DYING

Unconscious and seriously injured, Mrs. Mary E. Duddy, 64, was found in an alley off Highland ave., Somerville, early today, after falling three stories from a dining room window of her home.

Her son, Joseph Duddy, awakened by his mother only a short time before to go to work, was eating breakfast in the kitchen at the time. Mrs. Duddy, a widow, fell, police believe, when seized with a dizzy spell.

For some time, according to her son, she has been in poor health and subject to dizzy spells.

He had finished breakfast and went into the dining room to say good bye. His mother was missing and he saw the open window.

Looking down, he saw her on the ground, with a policeman bending over her.

The policeman, Michael J. Dewd, had just found her. He called an ambulance and she was sent to Central Hospital. She had suffered head and back, as well as internal injuries, and her name was placed on the danger list.

HANGING OF BOY, 15, MYSTERY

Admittedly baffled, police were without a clue today that would lead to the reason for Edward E. Harper, 15-year-old student in the Hobbs Junior high school, Medford, hanging himself last night in the kitchen of his home in Tyler ave., Medford.

The boy was found hanging by his mother only a short time after he had been talking in apparent cheerfulness with her.

The mother, Mrs. Agnes B. Harper, who today was prostrated with grief, told police she knew of no reason for the suicide, inasmuch as he was in perfect health, had a good home and was doing well at his school.

Doctor Ends Life

ORATORY FLOOD FAILS TO SOLVE AL'S STAND

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

Washington, Jan. 15 (INS)—The gale of Democratic oratory which swept the nation last night at upwards of a hundred "victory dinners" did little to clarify the muddy waters surrounding the presidential nomination.

If anything the Democratic gatherings only served to deepen the uncertainty and to make the enigmatical Alfred E. Smith more of a question mark than before.

Summarized, the dinners had these results:

1. In Boston, ex-Governor Smith remained silent in the face of an open prediction that his party would "draft" him in the forthcoming presidential campaign. He signified neither his acceptance nor rejection of invitations that he again become the party's standard bearer.

GARNER WILDLY CHEERED.

2. In New York, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, who possesses more delegates, actual and potential, than any other candidate, assailed the Republican national leadership, called for a new deal in taxation, but remained eloquently silent on the question of his own candidacy.

3. In Washington, the potential candidacy of Speaker "Jack" Garner of Texas, took on added significance as capital Democrats cheered his name and his record of leadership in the 72d Congress.

4. In Chicago, Democrats were warned that the only thing which can defeat them in 1932 is "overconfidence." "We have won elections before in January only to be divided and defeated in November," said Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic executive committee.

5. In Columbus, Senator Robert J. Bulkley, figured by some as a "dark horse" candidate, made a ringing appeal to his party to solve the prohibition question, and to make a firm stand against the internationalism that contemplates further cancellation of Europe's debts.

BOOM FOR BYRD

6. In Richmond, a boom was started for ex-Gov. Harry F. Byrd. The Virginia House of Delegates and State Senate unanimously adopted a resolution indorsing his candidacy.

Smith's refusal to throw any light on his own candidacy was variously interpreted today by party leaders. Some of them have always thought that "Al" was a receptive candidate for the nomination—not an aggressive candidate, but a quietly receptive one.

Others contend that he has no intention whatever of becoming a candidate, either aggressive or passive. They attribute his silence to his desire to maintain his influence in party councils unimpaired through the next national convention.

Al Smith Is 'Tired'; Can't Take Rest

Told by an admirer he was "looking fine," he replied:

"Thanks. But I'm doing too much. The building (Empire State) takes work.

"I've been on every relief committee in New York. And you know what that means. And here I am making political speeches again.

"I'm tired. I ought to take a rest. But there's none in sight."

PAY CUT PARLEY WAITS AGAIN

Chicago, Jan. 15 (AP)—Consideration of the employment problems of the nation's railroads was deferred again today by lack of the proper authority from certain eastern roads and one eastern line and opening of the first joint session of brotherhood and railway presidents was re-scheduled for 2 p. m.

Daniel Willard, president of the B. & O. and chairman of the conference group of nine executives asked the indulgence of Chairman David R. Robertson of the union men. The meeting originally intended to open yesterday, had been postponed until 10 a. m. today.

Willard said he was communicating by telephone with the railway leaders from whom the committee had not yet received the measure of authority it required.

LeMay is being fed by means of injections into the veins. Doctors were at a loss to account for the strange case.

PARTY DINNER TRIBUTE TO AL SMITH

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

The Democratic dinner was a tribute to Al Smith.

It was intended to have no personal political significance. It produced none.

Dan Gallagher, from the top of a banquet table, shouted to Smith to keep the shine on his brown derby. He was going to be drafted. He would need it in Washington.

The crowd accepted this as the dramatics of an enthusiastic Smith supporter. The crowd laughed and enjoyed it.

Smith, turning to Ely, said in a humorous undertone, "I'm beyond the draft age."

NOT TIME TO SPEAK

One newspaper thought Smith took himself out of the race. Less than two weeks ago, the political observer of the same paper wrote that Smith POSITIVELY WAS IN THE RACE.

This was a party meeting, to drum up confidence, courage and coin.

It was neither the time, the place nor the occasion for Smith or anyone else to speak of personal ambition or personal relinquishment. And Smith did not.

After the last campaign Smith took a group of newspapermen he would never run for public office again. I have felt he would stick to that statement. However, there is a feeling that anyone can defeat Hoover and there is no telling, under such circumstances, how and where a person's ambition may land him.

I talked with Smith for half an hour after the dinner. It was about the prosperity loan for relief of unemployment and of farm relief.

The people, overtaxed, reduced the national debt by eight billion dollars in eight years. The government ought to be as generous with the people now as they were generous with the government then. They would be glad to liquidate a bond issue for unemployment when prosperity comes again and they have the money with which to pay the taxes. That was our mutual thought.

SMITH IS FAVORITE

Most of the East forget there is an agricultural West, with voters in 23 states. About 5000 of their banks have failed. The value of their property devoted to farming has decreased by nearly twenty billion dollars. They constitute the greatest industry and one-third the population. Without their prosperity, none, anywhere in the country, can be fully prosperous. What has the Democratic East got to offer them in theway of help?

Smith fears the farmer West may be too much wedded to the G. O. P. and willing to go along with it, even into bankruptcy. But as leader of Democrats ought to try to wean them away.

Possibly the temper of the great audience could be measured by the reception of the telegrams from the various leaders. Smith, in person, received the volume of applause.

Of those away, Roosevelt would have been second. If ex-Governors counted as votes, Young Jim Roosevelt was there, and quite conspicuous. Ritchie received a good reception. I thought the response to Baker's measure was uncordial, Garner's was surprisingly warm and friendly, despite the fact that he is from so far away and so little known personally here as yet. Democrats seem to have gotten the notion that he is a two-fisted fighting man.

AFFAIR GREAT SUCCESS

From the viewpoint of spontaneous enthusiasm, the meeting was a tremendous success. The Mecca was crowded beyond capacity. Leo Goulston said he had to reject more than 300 applications for reservations.

In Massachusetts, the Democrats have taken the prior place in enthusiasm, confidence and unity which the Republicans had slons possessed for 50 years. That is what the great dinner showed. And nothing more. If some orator other than Smith had been the guest of the night, the attendance would have been smaller. But it would have been a substantial one, nevertheless.

BEAUTY COST HER LIFE

"Because she was good looking and refused to marry me," Arthur G. Wells, of Greenfield, murdered Sarah Hakes in Greenfield, 17 years ago, he told the parole board at the State prison, where he is serving a life sentence from which he seeks a commutation or a pardon.

Wells was supported in his petition yesterday by former State Treasurer John W. Haigis, and the attorney who defended him at the time, Timothy J. Hayes, now Judge Hayes of Greenfield.

The matter was taken under advisement.

MELLON FLATLY DENIES OWNING CORPORATION

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Denial of every impeachment charge by Representative Patman was made to the House Judiciary Committee today by Secretary Mellon's representative, Alexander W. Gregg.

Taking the stand for the first time after two days of testimony by Patman, Gregg said he would answer one by one the charges in the impeachmen tresolution.

He began with Mellon's business connections, saying he had no information as to whether the secretary owned stock in 300 corporations with resources of $3,000,000,000.

"Mr. Mellon controls no corporation," Gregg said. "What his family and business associates control I don't know. Mr. Mellon does not owe more than 50 per per cent of the stock in any corporation.

"I do not regard his family as an issue."

Patman, Texas Democrat, charged the Secretary of the Treasury had engaged in private business while in office in violation of the laws.

Police Mistaken for Burglars in Quincy

Two uniformed police officers, trying the doors of the Quincy Coal Co., Penn st., South Quincy, last night, were mistaken by a hysterical woman for burglars. Her telephone alarm to the police station brought two motorcycle officers racing through Quincy sq., followed by a patrol wagon loaded with officers armed with shotguns and riot bombs.

When they got on the scene all they saw were Sergt. Joseph Sweeney and Patrolman Jack Sheehan doing their routine duty.

'Monkey Army' of Boys and Girls Aids Gandhi Boycott

Bombay, Jan. 15 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi's "monkey army" is giving police almost as much trouble as the regular forces of the nationalist campaign.

In all large cities and towns boys and girls of tender years are engaged in acts of non-violence in behalf of the imprisoned Mahatma.

House Can't Speak Ill of Senate, But Luce Finds a Way!

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Talking about the Senate unfavorably is absolutely forbidden in the House. But how they do it!

Representative Sirovich of New York told Luce of Massachusetts that a proposition he objected to had been approved by "another legislative body."

Replied Luce:

"I cannot mention the other legislative body by name, but this House is the only legislative body that pays any attention to parliamentary procedure."

REFUSED DRINK, LEAPS TO DEATH

He jumped after being refused a drink of liquor.

The body was found on the roof of a three-story extension.

Balfe, whose wife was said by police to be living in Greenwich, Ct., told police he had known Catilloz for a little more than a year. He said he was awakened at 4 o'clock this morning by a telephone call from Catilloz, who told him he was coming to the room. Despite his protests that he wanted to sleep, Balfe said a few moments later Catilloz and Miss Irma Hunter, living at the Hotel St. Regis, entered the room.

Catilloz, Balfe told police, asked for a drink of liquor, was told there was none in the room, asked why and walked directly to the window and jumped out.

JURY DISAGREES IN AUTO SUIT

A disagreement was reported today by the jury in the personal injury suit of Mrs. Genevieve R. Hopkins, wife of a prominent Newton physician, against the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway.

The jury was given the case late yesterday afternoon and deliberated until 2:30 this morning, at which time they left without coming to any decision. They reported the disagreement to Judge Harold P. Williams in the first session of the Middlesex Superior Civil Court.

Mrs. Hopkins brought suit in connection with an accident in 1924 when as a passenger in a taxicab she alleged she was badly injured in a crash between the cab and a street car.

During the trial prominent plastic surgeons testified to almost completely rebuilding Mrs. Hopkins face after the accident.

Falls 5 Stories in Elevator, May Die

Crashing five stories to the basement in the elevator at the Peter Bent Brigham Hotel, formerly the Helvetia apartments, at 796 Huntington ave., Samuel Frandie, 32, single, the night clerk, received injuries today which may cause his death.

He has a fractured leg, possible fracture of the spine and internal injuries, and his name is on the danger list at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Frandie was first trapped in the car between the second and third floors. He shouted for help and a maid heard him. When she returned with several men they saw the car had moved to the top of the building, but as they watched it crashed at full speed to the basement.

Home Brew Blows Bottle Cap Down Maker's Throat

But he is not so loud in his praises today, after his experience of a few days ago when a concoction of his own making blew a metal cap down his throat as he was taking the cap off the bottle with his teeth.

He was rushed here to a hospital where the cap was located by X-ray. Then a physician with a special instrument equipped with a long flexible tube fished for it through Aggiano's mouth and finally was successful.

Now Aggiano uses a regular bottle opener.

CLUES FAIL IN DUAL VIRGINIA MURDER CASE

Middleburg, Va., Jan. 15 (INS)—With a dragnet for her slayer spread over the entire Eastern seaboard, simple and quiet funeral services for Mrs. Spencer Ilsley, murdered social leader and sportswoman of New York, Washington and Milwaukee were scheduled here today.

Services were to be conducted in Emmanuel Episcopal Church, an ivy-colored little building just around the corner from the home in which Mrs. Ilsley's body was found early Wednesday. Friends of Mrs. Ilsley came from the whole Shenandoah valley to attend the funeral.

SLAYERS AT LARGE

The body of Mrs. Anne Buckner of Rockville, Md., Mrs. Ilsley's elderly maid, who was found murdered with her mistress, was to be buried today at her home in Rockville.

After the funeral services Mrs. Ilsley's body will be taken to Milwaukee, for burial by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius W. Boeing of Fargo, N. D., who arrived today from Delray, Fla. Mrs. Ilsley will be buried beside her husband, Spencer Ilsley, Milwaukee financier, who died a year ago.

Two days of careful work on the part of county, state and District of Columbia authorities, have yielded only traces of the two suspects in the twin murders, George Crawford, a Negro former employe in the Ilsley household, and an unknown accomplice.

PRINTS MAY BE CLUE

Crawford, who was seen here the day preceding the murder and who disappeared after the crime, was reported variously as on his way to Philadelphia, and as doubling back into Virginia.

WINS broadcasts on the 1180 kilocycle frequency formerly used by WGBS, which has passed out of existence. It is operated by American Radio News Corp. for the Hearst enterprises. WINS operates daily in unison with W2XCR, experimental television station of the Jenkins Television Corp.

STARS ON PROGRAM

Among stars on the dedicatory program were Peggy Keenan and Sondra Phillips, CBS stars; the Three Cheers, of network fame; Gregoire Franzell, directing American music ensemble; Joe Vitale of George White's "Scandals"; Lester Place and Robert Pascocello, NBC stars; George Martin, NBC broadcaster; Mme. Cobina Wright, society member and singer; Trio Royale, David Stewart and Margery Swem; Alex Hill, Nydia D'Arnell, Maurice Ducret and others.

Angela Warde, chosen as the sweetest-voiced girl in New York in a contest conducted by the Evening Journal, was introduced as the first stars of station WINS.

Also present were E. J. Gough of San Francisco, director of Hearst radio service; W. G. H. Finch, chief engineer of the American Radio News Corporation, and Clark Kinnaird, eastern director of the Hearst radio service and director of station WINS.

AL SMITH ASKS HIS PARTY TO TAKE AN HONEST STAND ON PROHIBITION QUESTION

Now, let me leave the finances for a little while, because intensive organization such as can be brought about by proper financing is necessary, and the next subject that I want to speak about is the next Democratic platform.

If there ever was a time in the history of the country and in the history of the party when we should give to the American people a clean cut, straight forward, honest declaration, not only of principle, but of what we intend to do if entrusted with the government of this country, it is this coming year. (Applause).

Ninety per cent of our platforms in the past have been fault-finding. You read over the Democratic platform, and we condemn the Republicans for this, we condemn the administration for that, we spend 90 per cent of our time at finding fault with the other fellow. We don't have to do that this year. (Laughter).

TALK TO PEOPLE

There is no reason. Let us change our attitude with respect to our platform and let us this year frankly tell the people what we intend to do and get away from this evasive language. The Democratic party has always believed in law and order (laughter); as though it could exist for all these years if it had not (laughter).

Let us be sure that we make a frank, an open and an honest declaration about what we intend to do with this prohibition law. (Applause and cheers.) We owe it to our people, we owe it to the country. The country is looking to the Democratic party for relief.

ASSAILS WASTE

There is no use of looking to the Republican party. The President is not in accord with his own commission (laughter). They do not propose to do anything about it, and they are hoping that we do not; so that we can carry on this double dealing and this ducking and this dodging, which has been going on: wet when you are among the wets, dry when you are among the drys; and send one speaker out West to talk, and have another one talking in the East, and be sure they do not talk the same language (laughter). We cannot keep that up any longer.

Now the Republican party is unalterably committed to a continuance not only of the waste of money in a senseless attempt at enforcement, but an economic waste that is growing from the loss of taxation, while liquor of all kinds is flowing through every state in the United States.—From former Governor Smith's address.

do not make any mistake, the man on the other side of that problem understand that phase of it just as well as we do; but they don't want to see it. They go so far as to say it is not an issue, it is a social question.

SEES PARTY CALLED

Well, was it an issue in New Hampshire? Was it an issue in Jersey? Was it an issue out in Michigan?

Did the late Senator Morrow make it an issue when he ran for Senator in New Jersey? You bet he did, and came out with a declaration absolutely contrary to the position taken by his chief and the leader of his party at Washington.

I will go a step further: I think I am right—I am sure I am right—I think that the change in the political complexion in the House of Representatives can largely be attributed to the fact that the people of the country are looking to the Democratic party for relief (Applause).

Now, what do I mean when I speak about a declaration in the platform? I just mean this: that neither of the political parties can hope to give the people any relief unless and until all the candidates of that party are pledged to some definite plan (applause).

I do not know whether you have paid any attention or not to the report made by the chairman of the National Committee, when that committee was in session in Washington last week, but he offered a plan which in my way of thinking meets the question even among our friends.

In a few words he asked that the party take no position, wet or dry, but that it definitely pledge its candidates to submit to the American people themselves for consideration in the various states a proposal which will allow any state to get out from underneath the Eighteenth Amendment after a plan has been presented in that state and approved by it in a popular referendum.

TOUCHES TARIFF

Ah! That does not require a man to do violence to his constituency on either side of the question, and it allows him to go back home and say, "I have followed the principles of the Democratic party. I am recognizing the rule of the majority in the first instance, and, in the second, I am perfectly willing to submit to the American people themselves the settlement of any question which affects them as deeply as does this question."

What is wrong about that? I am afraid it is too good (laughter)! I am afraid the other fellow might copy it (laughter). The Democratic party in a convention must stop finding fault with the Republican tariff. Everybody knows what it is and how it came into existence. Not a single vote is to be gathered by finding any fault at all.

But write into our platform a clear, clean-cut declaration of what we intend to do with respect to it, and let us declare for the setting up of a bureau for scientific tariff-making as against the log-rolling, and back-slapping, and compromising and giving and taking which brought this present tariff into existence in a period of world depression.

G. O. P. HAS FAILED

Faced with an enormous deficit the logical thing for the Democratic party to do is to definitely promise the people of this country that they will make good the false promises of the Republican party made over 10 years ago to overhaul and reorganize the structure of the government of the United States and keep out the waste and duplication and carve out about half of these bureaus in Washington that are overlapping each other and riding around the country burning up the taxpayers' money. (Applause.)

You need expect no hope from the Republican party on that score. They have been working on it since 1921. This year the President did recommend several minor consolidations and in a very weak and half-hearted way, just a little suggestion.

It wants more than the suggestion. It wants some active leadership to do that. It wants somebody that will talk to the American people about their business.

Look at the picture on the front of that pamphlet you have there. A fellow has got to stand up on the top steps of that building to talk down to those people. You can't do it by writing letters or sending messages. (Laughter.) It can't be done.

Well, last week while we were in session in Washington I had something to say about the administration's program with respect to relief from unemployment, and I suggested a bond issue for to progress the necessary public works and public improvements, and I said at the dinner that I expected it would meet probably with a great deal of opposition, particularly from the Republican press.

READS EDITORIAL

Well, here it is.

"We have no magnificent formula of our own for the cure of the nation's economic ills, but we distrust this one." (Laughter.)

Now that is the editorial, but strange to say, in the exact same edition there is a news article, and here is what the news article says:

"Federal construction works in the Hampton Roads area during the ensuing winter and spring will be calculated to do much to banish the gloomy business outlook which confronts nearly every other section of the country."

The editor of that paper is against the bond issue editorially and he is for it in the news column because it is promoting the industry and business at Hampton Roads.

Let me see what this fellow says. (Laughter.) This is a Washington paper, and he says the bond issue will be no use because all these buildings will be built in Washington, and they will be no use to Governor Smith's constituents in New York that are out of work.

Well, of course, the statement on its face is an absurdity. These public works are spread out throughout the whole country, from Maine to California, and a considerable part of them are in Washington. And he lost sight of another fact, that it is not the construction of the building that furnishes employment as much as it is the preparation of the materials that go into the construction of the buildings.

The highest number of men employed at any one time on the Empire State Building was 4000 odd; but just think of the millions of pounds of stuff that went into that building that was fabricated east of the Rocky Mountains, and provided employment in steel plants, in brick yards, in stone yards, and in all of the different places that furnished that vast amount of material.

QUOTES HOOVER

Here is a New York Republican organ that speaks about Smith initiating something—the United States government going into the business of road building. Why, there is nothing new about that. Here is what the President said about it:

"Since my first appeal two years ago for the expediting of public works as a means of relieving unemployment, communities have been more effective in their response. Upon their advice appropriations for road work have been increased, and the increased funds have been wisely expended by them in such manner as to yield the maximum benefit. I am especially gratifying to note that the increased road building activity has not only provided work for many thousands of otherwise idle men, but also has added to the facilities for promoting their transportation."

Why, the President is for it. The only trouble with him is that he recommended less for it this year than he did last year, in spite of business depression and in spite of the unemployment condition.

And when I suggest bonds for it I simply suggest that they take up the slack where the government is unable to appropriate it or unwilling to appropriate it primarily from current revenues.

Now let us keep this in mind. The bond issue, if the bonds were to be issued in the regular way, would be useless; if the money was to be expended by the same machinery now in Washington, that would be useless. There is nothing as slow in this world as public works, particularly the federal public works. But here is the greatest example of it. One hundred million dollars sliced off the public buildings appropriation this year on the ground that they are not spending what they have—100,000,000.

Now there is only one way to handle that. You have got to say that this country is not on a peace-time basis while this unemployment is eating into the family life of America. You have got to say that we are in a state of war, war against unemployment, misnutrition and the disease and the suffering that grow from it. And we need a Federal public works administrator, clothed with that plenary power we gave to men during war time, to carry this war on, to cut through, slash, tear out the red tape that is occasioned in the ordinary peace-time conduct of government." — From former Governor Smith's address.

CREDIT NECESSARY

What is the Federal government's remedy for unemployment? Every single proposal so far in help business requires the credit of the United States.

But on unemployment the administration has passed it back to the local authorities and the newspaper editorials unfriendly to the bond issue say, "Take care of it in the natural way. Let every locality look out for its citizens that are out of work, and if the locality can't do it turn it over to private charity.

Of course, we know that is the trouble. It is known throughout the length and breadth of this land that the municipalities are unable to do it.

Here is an article which appeared in a Boston newspaper, which tells me that the mayors of five cities in Massachusetts are going to call on Gov. Ely and ask him for relief for the municipalities. The cities have had their revenue cut. They can't sell bonds or securities. They are facing an old and natural business problem.

Down in New York, with an enormous population, they are only taking care of about one-half of the heads of families that are without employment and have women and children depending upon them for support, not to speak about the 700,000 not calculated in that figure. It can't be done. The Republican method will not work. (Applause.)

I have the figures here of just how much money even the Federal Government is able to expend under the present situation, bound up as it is in red tape and passing through all of the various departments, boards, bureaus and commissions that supervise it.

In a whole year they were able to construct only $23,000,000 worth of buildings. Why, in the city of New York we can erect one building twice that cost in a year, one single building, and that is the whole operation throughout the length and breadth of the United States.

Now we gave the credit of this country very freely for the destruction of property and the destruction of life. What can be the possible fault to find with lending the credit of the country for the building up of our own property and for the preservation of the lives of millions of people in American homes today that find the wolf of hunger at the door?

The people of this country are entirely tired of inaction, of timidity and of vacillation. They are crying out loud for leadership. The Democratic party has the opportunity for to supply that leadership that the Republican party is unable to supply after their long tenure of office.

Self confidence is the greatest foe of depression. Let the American people pep up. Let them support this party of ours. Put us in position to give them the leadership they need, and we will come out of this trouble.

I remember years ago as an altar boy down in old St. James Church, down in the lower East Side of New York, I heard an old chant called "Sursum Corda," and every boy that read any of Burke's orations will remember how he used that as one of the ancient slogans of the church in his great speech for American independence.

The thing for us to do is to buckle up, keep a stiff upper lip, be faithful to ourselves and to our traditions. Let us chant "Sursum Corda"—"Lift Up Your Hearts." If we had that we would grow out of the depression, and the Democratic party will be able to supply the leadership that will light the way to peace, progress and prosperity throughout the United States. (Loud applause, all rising.)

Huge Waste and Loss of Revenue in Dry Law Cited

"The Republican party is unalterably committed to a continuance not only of the waste of money in a senseless attempt at enforcement (of prohibition), but an economic waste that is growing from the loss of taxation while liquor of all kinds is flowing through every state in the United States."—From former Governor Smith's address.

And we need a federal public works administrator, clothed with that plenary power we gave to men during war time, to carry this war on, to cut through, slash, tear out the red tape that is occasioned in the ordinary peace-time conduct of government." — From former Governor Smith's address.

With "Apologies" to Macy's of New York!
Macy's—one of the largest and most unique stores in the world, said in part in the New York Times last week:—
"This country must be fundamentally sound. Think of it! Of the thousands of women we interviewed, a goodly number said they were interested in buying new winter coats, and of that number, 20% said they wanted to buy new fur coats in January! We congratulate these women on their shrewdness . . . you will notice that we are not quoting comparatives. The radical drop in fur prices makes such phrases as 'regular price' or 'last year's price' meaningless!"
So Say We "Thrice"!
SCOTT Furriers

MACY'S offered in their advertisement referred to above a group of fur coats at $139.
We shopped these coats and found them exceptionally good values. We decided right then and there that the women of New England were entitled to the same values offered in New York.

P. S.
"Not one cent was paid us for advertising Macy's."
We are, therefore, offering a group of fur coats at $139, and our modesty only permits us to say that we believe they are at least as good as the values offered in New York.

CROWDS GREET HIM

Fahey is executive chairman of the 1932 Democratic victory campaign organization which will raise funds for the presidential race.

Upon the return to the Statler, Al remained in his car for 15 minutes, awaiting Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Mooney. A large crowd gathered about, others filled the windows of the Statler office building, and from afar, girls at the John Hancock building waved and he responded.

With Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Mooney carrying two baskets of flowers, he then went to the Massachusetts General Hospital to visit Mrs. Daniel C. Lynch, wife of Dr. Lynch of Albany, N. Y., an old friend of the "Happy Warrior."

Gov. Smith slept until about 9 o'clock and then rang for a "double orange juice." At 10 o'clock he appeared with Mrs. Smith and they sat to breakfast with Driscoll, being joined later by Fahey and the other members of their party. Mrs. Smith did not go to the hospital.

ADVOCATES PRINCIPLES

Massachusetts Democracy aroused to a high pitch of enthusiasm by Gov. Smith's demand for a clean-cut declaration of issues and elimination of fault-finding from the party's platform, centered the presidential campaign in as-test today, confident of victory.

The titular leader of the party, accorded a notable reception at the Statler banquet, declared that there never was a time in the history of the Democratic party when the people were more entitled to know exactly what the Democrats intend to do if placed in control.

He advocated:

1—Support for the plan put forward by Chairman John J. Raskob of the National Committee pledging candidates to submit the prohibition law to the people themselves for ratification at State conventions so that any State could be freed of the Eighteenth Amendment after a plan had been approved in popular referendum.

2—The setting up of a bureau for scientific tariff making.

3—Overhauling and reorganizing the government bureaus to end waste and duplication.

4—A federal bond issue for public improvements throughout the country to be subscribed for by the public.

The climax of the dinner came after the "Happy Warrior" had finished his address, and when it became apparent in the 2000 guests that the standard bearer of 1928 would make no declaration on his own position in the campaign.

Daniel J. Gallagher, former United States attorney, arose and reminded the former governor that the press in the last few days has been clamoring for his plans.

"Let me in the name of this gathering and the countless thousands whom it represents say to you, 'Go slow with your plans until you hear from the people. The party is going to draft you. Don't throw away that brown derby. You will need it again and it will not look bad at all when you hang it up down in Washington.'"

Cheers and applause greeted Gallagher's statement, but the former chief executive of the Empire state simply smiled. It was not until later, however, that those in attendance learned that the former governor had commented, in a side, to Governor Ely:

"That's fine, but I am beyond the draft age."

CITES PROPAGANDA

In some quarters Smith's reaction was taken as an indication that he will not be a candidate again.

The former Governor, started in a light vein, which brought frequent laughter from his audience. Then touching upon the history of the Democratic party he put most of the blame for its failure to elect its leaders to its lack of organization work.

On the other hand, he pointed out, the Republican propagandists were busily convincing the country that it had "some peculiar connection with the business interests' of the country "which put it in the position of guaranteeing prosperity."

Taking his own presidential candidacy, for example, he said that there was no national headquarters that he knew of, no press bureau, and that he was forced to go to individual members of the party to get material for his speeches.

Fortunately, he declared, that was changed in 1928, following the election when the chairman, Raskob continued the national organization. The victories of 1930, he said, is the work of this body. He reminded his hearers that a great amount of the money that kept this organization going was borrowed from the chairman, a situation which he deplored.

The party, he asserted, belongs to the rank and file of the people and they must finance it. Small subscriptions, he said, are infinitely more desirable than large donations from a few.

WASTE ON LIQUOR

It was in furtherance of this desire on the part of the leaders, he said, that the victory dinners were arranged, and that he elected to come to Boston in appreciation of his great reception here in 1928.

He pleaded for a change of attitude this year in respect to the platform to be adopted.

"Let us tell the people what we intend to do and get away from this evasive language," he said.

Scoring the Republicans on the liquor issue, he charged that that party is unalterably committed to a waste of money "in a senseless attempt at enforcement," and "economic waste that is growing from the loss of taxation while liquor of all kinds is flowing through every state in the United States."

The position taken by the Republican party, that the question is a social one and not an issue, he declared has been disproved by the results of elections in New Hampshire, New Jersey and Michigan.

The late Senator Morrow of New Jersey, he said, made it an issue, taking a position contrary to that of President Hoover, leader of his party.

He expressed a firm conviction that the change in the political complexion of the House was due to the hope of the people that relief will come through the Democrats.

Here he made the point that neither political party can give any relief unless and until all the candidates are pledged to some definite plan.

The plan of Chairman Raskob, he stated, to his way of thinking, "meets the question, even among our friends."

"In a few words," he said, "he asked that the party take no position, wet or dry, but that it definitely pledge its candidates to submit to the American people themselves for ratification at conventions in the states a proposal which will allow any state to get from beneath the Eighteenth Amendment after a plan has been presented to that state and approved by a popular referendum."

EFFICIENCY NEEDED

A prediction that he made when he proposed a federal bond issue for public works and building to relieve unemployment, that it would meet with a great deal of opposition, he said, has been justified by the reception of the program by the Republican press.

One of these papers, he stated, which condemned his plan, in the same issue was urging federal construction works in Hampton roads to end the business depression.

Such a bond issue, he explained, issued in the regular way would be useless if the money was to be expended by the machinery now in existence in Washington, where the excuse is given that the money already appropriated for the purpose can't be handled by the federal public works. He said there is nothing in the world so slow as this department.

Mrs. Smith, came in for a large share of applause and attention also.

The radio program, presided over by Leopold M. Goulston, was used early in the proceedings when Mayor Curley continued with his address beyond his allotted time.

He renewed his argument for public expenditures in times of unemployment and differed on the wage cut program of Governor Ely.

He bitterly flayed the national administration and drew a contrast between conditions today and the rosy promises made by the Republicans in the last election.

"I have no patience with the short-sited so-called economists who contend that the return of prosperity is dependent upon a reduction in the wages of the workers of America," he challenged. "The most prosperous years in the history of our country were the years when the highest wage scale ever known in the history of the world was in full and complete operation in America."

He paid a graceful tribute to Mrs. Smith and complimented Governor Ely. Cheering for the Mayor was led by Whitfield Tuck of Winchester.

Governor Ely, applauded vociferously, did not let the overtime speech of the Mayor pass without paying his respects.

Noticeably aroused, the Governor said:

"I was glad to yield him 10 minutes of my time."

To Mr. Smith, the Governor gave the credit for the victories for the Democracy in Massachusetts in 1928 and 1930.

He praised the temper of the American people during present times, saying that their fortitude and endurance indicates an unbroken faith in the economic and social integrity of American institutions.

He stated that he is particularly pleased with the Democratic Congress.

"The House of Representatives, under the leadership of Speaker Garner, has acted with a speed and precision heretofore utterly lacking in time of peace. It is a tribute to the patriotism of the man and his loyal fellow congressmen."

He urged that the Democratic platform set up constructive principles.

In discussing the economic situation, he contended that the wage must fluctuate with conditions.

77 HARVARD MEN ENCOURAGED TO BE MEN

By GILBERT SELDES

HARVARD, according to the old song, was Harvard when Yale was but a pup, and Harvard some thirty years ago had a nasty reputation in spite of the arrogance and affected accent of Harvard men, there was no Harvard type. The typical Harvard man did not exist; the tradition was that Harvard let its young men alone to develop independently, to be individual. It now appears that Harvard University is one of the biggest real estate developments in New England, and seventy-seven young men have incurred the displeasure of A. Lawrence Lowell (President of the University and ex-officio head of the real estate development) because they will not rent rooms in the houses erected for them.

Sales Resisters

"Nine Seniors, thirty-five Juniors and thirty-three Sophomores have preferred to hire private houses in which they can live in small groups by themselves," says the President's report. "To permit them to do so has been thought wiser than to attack to the Houses any sense of compulsion . . . That a resistless current will before long draw all such men into the vast majority of their fellow-students there is no reason to doubt; and in the meanwhile the loss is theirs."

For Whatever Reason

I present my compliments to the nine Seniors, the thirty-five Juniors and the thirty-three Sophomores. My experience with college under-graduates, at Harvard, and elsewhere, permits me no romantic illusions; I cannot be sure that these seventy-seven men have done the right thing for the good motive, as the French say. They may be snobs of riches or snobs of social distinctions or literary or intellectual snobs, but by all the gods of democracy they have a right to do what they please, and President Lowell has very little ground in the experience of humanity for saying that the loss is theirs. It is just as likely that the other 1700 students, who have yielded without a struggle, are losing the most valuable thing that college could give them, which is contact with independent minds.

Something for Brag

It ought to be the boast of a college that it sets up a resistless current to draw men out of the vast majority, because college is the last period in the life of a young man for the development of a powerful individuality. Even a college which wants its young men to live together (which is a good thing, breaking down barriers between rich and poor, between Westerners and Southerners, between men of different races and religions) should be glad to know that it has a minority, civilized or brutalized, right or wrong. I have very little respect for minorities and no respect at all for the theory that the few are necessarily right and the many are wrong. But I respect the human principle of allowing the minority to exist and to flourish.

Does Lowell Remember?

When President Lowell resigns and an estimate is made of his contribution to American civilization, one credit mark will be put down to balance the millions of cubic feet of real estate in which he so prides himself. That mark will be for the time when the majority of Harvard turned itself into a mob and tried to lynch a teacher whose ideas were unpopular. (An intellectual lynching, to be sure, but cowardly and brutal as a hanging.) On that occasion President Lowell showed himself a true son of Harvard which Charles W. Eliot created; he stood with the minority and he defeated the mob. Perhaps he regrets it now.

Bugs Baer's Master

"Have you let them scare you?" asks Mr. John Forrest. "You used to compare Irving Berlin to Beethoven, or was it Bach: and Krazy Kat to Anatole France; now you write about Bugs Baer and never bring in the great master of comparisons, Henry James. Cowardice, I call it." The truth is I was carried away with enthusiasm, and forgot about "poor dear Henry James," about whom Ford Madox Ford has some enchanting stories in his forthcoming "Return to Yesterday." I remember that the first or second time I heard James' name mentioned it was in connection with his similes; the speaker quoted one I have never found, about a woman who entered a room as confidently as an astronomer on a starry night, which has the same quality of making you see which all of Baer's comparisons have.

Figures of Speech

He says of another woman that she changed the subject as she might slam a door in your face; and of a little girl who was to spend half a year with each of her divorced parents, that she was "a deep little porcelain cup in which biting acids could be mixed." (That is in "What Maisie Knew," an ideal work to start James with.) The later James ran his similes into two or three pages; there is one comparing something. Heaven knows what, to a pagoda, so involved that it is frequently quoted as a parody, which is not what the old master intended. The fact that his work is studded with perfect similes is a clue to one of his most neglected qualities: he was a satiric and humorous writer of the first order, but he wasn't a humorist, professionally, so he is read sombrely and with tears. His descriptions of New England spinsters and American tourists abroad are matchless examples of intelligent humor.

STOLEN RINGS IN GLOVE TIPS

Paul O'Donnell, 19, of Rockaway st., Lynn, charged with breaking and entering and larceny was held in $2000 by Lynn police early today after they discovered five stolen rings in the fingertips of his gloves.

O'Donnell was arrested on suspicion and dropped his gloves as he was being taken to police headquarters. Police examined the gloves and found the rings, valued at $300. They were identified by Mrs. Alma Pierce, of Broad st., Lynn, as property stolen from her home January 8.

The youth has a record of 11 arrests for breaking and entering, police say. He has also served in Concord reformatory and Lyman an' Shirley schools.

MILK LOSS LAID TO PLOTTERS

Burlington, Vt., Jan. 15 (AP)—Milk price manipulators were blamed by Governor S. C. Wilson in his address before Vermont dairymen at a banquet for conditions which have caused a loss of $2,000,000 a month to New England farmers. Governor Wilson said:

"There was no demand on the part of Boston consumers for a lower milk price. The price was forced down somewhat by overproduction, but more largely by efforts of dealers to manipulate the market.

"Because these manipulators were not interested in the welfare of producers, it was necessary for producers to organize for their own interests."

The Governor said there still were two co-operative creameries which have not signed with the new producers price negotiation body to bring the price of milk in Boston back to six cents.

Pure as Mountain Air

ABOVE the timber-line! Another world. Where every breath is like a tonic. Every step a thrill . . . and every man a king. Because the air is pure.

It's purity that distinguishes the good things of life from the almost-good. And that's as true at the cigarette counter as it is 5000 feet above sea level.

Chesterfield's purity starts with tobacco . . . the ripest, finest, purest leaf that money can buy! Mild tobaccos . . . made milder still by cross-blending. Then they're wrapped in paper so pure it burns without taste or odor.

Every ingredient . . . every method used in making Chesterfields is checked by a staff of scientists. Even the air in the factories is washed and changed every 4½ minutes.

By our use of a highly scientific process which was worked out by Dr. Paul Gross, Head Chemist of our Research Department, Chesterfield reaches a state of purity unmatched, to our knowledge, by any other cigarette.

Try the air at the bottom of a mountain. Try it at the top. Try any other cigarette. Then Chesterfield. The difference is purity . . . and what purity means in milder, better taste. You'll find . . . they satisfy!

● A refreshing radio program, too! Chesterfield is on the Columbia Network every night, except Sunday, at 10:30 E. S. T. Nat Shilkret's Orchestra and Alex Gray, popular soloist.

THEY'RE MILDER • • THEY'RE PURE • • THEY TASTE BETTER • • They Satisfy

WE ARE RECEIVING GLOWING REPORTS OF ESCUDERO, the Spanish dancer. Like La Argentina, he dances accompanied only by castanets or some of the fifty-odd rhythms he beats with his heels. His castanets are made of various metals to achieve effects, silver, aluminum and bronze which sound like bells. Almost always he dances with Carmita Garcia but we have not heard that she will accompany him on his Boston visit.

* * *

Many prominent Boston charity and music lovers will attend his performance in Symphony Hall on Wednesday evening, Jan. 27, after an engagement at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

* * *

Another visitor from foreign shores is Oliver Baldwin, son of the former British premier, Mr. Stanley Baldwin. He will speak at the Copley-Plaza on Friday morning, Feb. 26, and his topic will be "British Politics Today and Tomorrow." The lecture is being given under the auspices of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters. It would seem to us that we have statesmen of our own who could present this subject as interestingly as Mr. Baldwin and perhaps more to our understanding. Why we continue paying large sums to these men and women who come to these shores and tell us anything they like while secretly despising us, is quite beyond the comprehension of one person.

Frontier Nursing Work is Praised

DR. C. E. A. WINSLOW SPOKE ELOQUENTLY AND feelingly about the Frontier Nursing Association at the Junior League yesterday. We enjoyed a good lunch in the attractive ballroom while he was discoursing on the allures of the Mountain Cruise to the West Indies and wish WE could go along with the many people from all over the country who will combine charity with pleasure and embark on the Brittanic, sailing the last of February for the tropics.

Going to Florida

MRS. S. PARKER BREMER seems to change her mind about where she will spend the winter every time we see her. Now it is Orlando, Florida, where she has decided to go and has asked many of her friends to accompany her to a villa in that lovely spot. She is leaving — so we imagine — the middle of this month to be gone until the last of February. The last report was that she would spend the winter in Dublin, where she has been giving singing lessons to the youngsters in two small schools. Changing her mind seems to be her favorite form of exercise.

President

THE COMPETENT PIONEER of the Kentucky Nursing Association, Mrs. Breckenridge, was unable to be present owing to a fall from her horse which has laid her up in the hospital for several weeks but she is very pluckily handling the affairs of her mission from the bedside. Mrs. Ernest Amory Codman presided at the luncheon-committee meeting. Among those present were Mrs. Edward H. Warren, Jr., Miss Frances Gardiner, Zalda DeJonge and Barbara Reynolds.

Returns to Boston

WE MET A FAMILIAR FACE today on Beacon Hill but one we have not seen for two or three years, Mrs. Arthur Derby. Very chic she was in mustard yellow tweed ensemble, like a crocus springing out of the ground because the sun was shining and the atmosphere seemed like summer. She told us she had taken an apartment at Exeter st. and was going to stay in Boston for good; of course, running down to Nassau now and then to the adorable house which they own on that balmy island. They have just returned from there and will make one more journey to Nassau before spring. The Derbys have been living in New York for three years but Mrs. Derby seemed very happy to be back in Boston among her many friends.

BOOKS—and a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

After several years of silence we hear this morning the voice of T. A. Daly again, singing his incomparable Italo-American ballads, and his Irish-American songs as well. They make sweet music.

No one can write such authentic dialect as he. And no one can get home homely philosophy into his poetry. Like Riley and Field, he uses the vernacular of the day in his rhythmical stanzas, but the eternal human heart is there too. This is not fugitive verse: it is sound, authentic, substantial utterance, containing a tear as often as it contains a smile. In its own sphere it is as true as Burns is true. In medieval days, Daly would have been a troubadour wandering down the land, singing to his guitar; but today, perforce, he takes his lute before the Franklin status in Philadelphia, or in front of some Italian fruit-stand and strums to his heart's content.

"Marconi Medleys" (Harcourt, Brace) is his fifth volume of verse; but there is no diminution of his power, no flagging of his humor, no discernible retrogression of his metrical skill. I salute him as a poet of the people.

* * *

Never think that because a singer is in tune with his time and employs the language of the hour he is that much less a singer. It is part of a poet's business to know what goes on in the living world around him as well as in that other remote realm of the imagination; and if he brings us news of the common dust in the street, that is as important today as a picture of lost highways that existed long ago. There are snatches and ballads waiting to be made from the meanest material. A rag-picker can be made as romantic as a prince, as every fairy tale has proved; but only an artist may accomplish the miracle.

"Tom" Daly knows this. In such a lyric as "The Flower Girl" you will find just what I have been trying to say:

Giuseppina Scalabrari'
She's so small
Een her feegers she can tak'
Rags and mak'
Pretty flowers outa dem
Wit a stem.
An' she-do dat job so wal—
All excepta for da smal—
Een ees hard for you to tal
Dey are deeleerent kinda theeng
From da ones da sun can breeng
Een da spreeng!

Giuseppina Scalabrari'
Took my heart.
Dat, too, was a rag, onteell.
Weeth her skeell,
She baygan to feex eet so
Eet could grow.
Now, my frand, you ought ta see
Wat a change has com' to be!
Eef she joosta look at me,
Een my heart—da seelly theeng—
Reets com' as' robins seeng—
Like een spreeng!

But Daly, unlike his flower girl, is able to inject even the smell into th flowers of song he weaves with such seeming ease. It amounts almost to necromancy. On the printed page these verses are beautiful enough; but those of us who have been so fortunate as to hear "Tom" Daly give readings of his dialect poems know how his voice gives an added grace to them.

* * *

They are telling a story of one of our most celebrated lawyers, and how a certain man met him for the first time at a quiet luncheon one day not long ago.

In the course of conversation, this man asked some simple question about the law, and the great barrister answered it promptly.

The next day came a bill "for professional advice" which amounted to no less than five hundred dollars, which was promptly, though unwillingly paid.

A month or so later the same man encountered the lawyer on the golf links. He smiled and bowed, and said:

"It's a beautiful day, Mr. Blank," and then in terror, added hurriedly:

"I'm telling you, Mr. Blank—not asking you!"

BEGINNING TO LIVE

An appetizing cereal, bringing "bulk" and Vitamin B, stopped the source of those dull headaches, and premature wrinkles

SHE had been a sufferer from constipation for many years. It sapped her enthusiasm and energy, took the sparkle out of her eyes, and made her skin sallow.

Every night she dosed herself with pills and drugs — in bigger and bigger quantities as time went on. They gave only temporary relief. Then, fortunately, she read an advertisement about Kellogg's ALL-BRAN (just as you are doing now).

She tried this delicious cereal. The results were surprising. She found she had a lot more energy at the end of a day. Her skin lost its sallow hue. Her drabness departed. Her friends discovered in her a new and colorful personality.

How could so simple a thing as eating a cereal effect this great change? Here's why. ALL-BRAN brings two things that check common constipation. "Bulk" which exercises the intestines. Vitamin B which helps give them tone. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar in action to that of lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture, and becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Try two tablespoonfuls daily. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming. Equally tasty as a cereal with milk or cream, or cooked into fluffy bran muffins, breads, omelets, waffles, etc. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Wallace Beery

Clark Gable

They shine anew in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most ambitious picture undertaking. Wallace Beery, because he tops his remembered role of "Butch" in "The Big House." Clark Gable, because he vindicates again the popularity America has given him. The cast also includes Conrad Nagel, Dorothy Jordan, Marjorie Rambeau, Marie Prevost.

EDISON'S RADIO PLAN

Daily Musicale Considered Likely

By N. F. T.

Those who knew Thomas A. Edison in life, also knew one of his ambitions during the latter part of that useful life, was to sponsor an elaborate radio program of choice music. His motive was far more philanthropic than commercial. It is a fact that death came to prevent his carrying out the cherished thought.

• • •

One of the strongest rumors yet to loom in broadcasting circles on this hemisphere, is the current talk having to do with the immortal inventor's plan being taken up and put into effect by his closest friend, Detroit's mighty motor car magnate, Henry Ford.

• • •

AUGMENTED ORCHESTRA

Tentative details center around B. A. Rolfe for the featured conductor of a 75-piece orchestra to be heard Sundays, with a somewhat smaller group holding forth on weekdays. The program would be a seven-day feature each week, transmitted through perhaps the most far-reaching network of stations NBC controls.

• • •

That is what may happen before very long. Official confirmation of negotiations is not immediately available for one reason and another, as one must bear in mind the age-old adage about cups slipping before being elbowed to proverbial lips.

• • •

Nevertheless, it is certainly a future air front delightful to anticipate if it materializes.

• • •

BIG (?) ISSUE

Someone has thoughtfully suggested that the growth of radio is comparable to that of motor car manufacturing as an American industry. Quite a discussion took place hereabouts yesterday as to the relative degree of necessity with which the public considers each in family circles. Don't pooh-pooh dig up the funniest things to argue about"

• • •

Cardinal O'Connell's recent condemnation of crooners as vapid substitutes for artists with real talent, didn't stir things in radio realms so much as it did quiet individuals down. Nobody will admit being a crooner now.

• • •

Jack Denny has just signed for his orchestra to make 24 Victor recordings. After "Ranny" Weeks' vocal work on Walter Winchell's program with Denny in Montreal last Tuesday night, none but the Weeks voice will do the singing.

Everybody's happy now that Howard (radio editor) Fitzpatrick is once more on his feet and about ready to get back in harness tomorrow or Monday . . . Boston station men were attentive and thoughtful through his 15-day siege and operation . . . George Harder and John Clark of WBZ, Louis Whitcomb and J. V. McDonald of WEEI, not forgetting Charles Purton there, in addition to Roy Harlow and Linus Travers at WNAC all kept in close touch with the elongated scribe . . . While discussing illness, which isn't pleasant, be reminded that Adam (WBZ) Redmond hasn't been on the air for a couple of days, due to a severe cold . . . Those Gossipers of WAAB fame are keeping up appearances (personal) by greeting folks in the flesh today at the Ca: Show out Huntington ave . . . Listeners seem to like Cliff (baritone) O'Rourke alright, but then Micky Alpert said they would even before Cliff came Hubward from Winchellville . . . More than a few lately have been asking what is keeping Jimmy Gallagher off the air and when will Jimmy be heard again . . . Faithful M. G. M. has pledged to furnish that information on this hush page any day now . . . Ed (Yankee Philosopher) Young is planning to salute surrounding communities during forthcoming periods on WAAB . . . Martha (WAAB) Lee switched over from 11 a. m. to 11:15 this morning, but Martha broadcasts at the even hour on coming Mondays and Wednesdays as usual.

Kelvin Keech, NBC pronouncer, has a ukulele case made entirely of tin cans.

Casting no aspersions on Kelvin, maybe that's where all spare microphones have dasappeared.

Ruth Snow Bern, Boston authoress, will be interviewed by Arthur Crowley on the Serenaders p'gram, WBZ at 7:15 Wed.

A RULING that three "damns" and two "hells" may be used on the air for each p'gram is in effect at CBS . . . Vincent Lopez moves to the Met. for a wk. Jan. 23 . . . Lee McCullom spends his spare time walking round town searching for human interest stories to be used as material for his WBZ b'dcasts . . . Lou Baker is due for a grocery sponsor.

ANN LEAF and Ben Alley will move into a daily CBS sponsored spot in a wk or so . . . Adrian O'Brien is lonesome for Boston. Chet Gaylord has had her stripped of his last local b'cast. But more will probably be on the way . . .

N. S. DAM BREAK FLOODS TOWN; ONE LOST

Great Village, N. S., Jan. 15 (AP)—Unleashed by a crumbling dam a wall of water swept from Acadia mines last night over six miles of countryside and through sections of this village and Londonderry, wrecking homes at upper levels from their foundations and ripping the surface from highways.

Several lives were imperiled as the water overwhelmed homes. All escaped except one man, Thomas Colebach, who did not leave his room when the warning came.

Residents of the two villages had worked all yesterday to improve the pressure from the mud wall, new gaps appeared on the dam. Their blasting found an outlet enough water down the river bed and shortly before midnight the dam broke.

Students to Present Play

"You Never Can Tell," by George Bernard Shaw, will be presented as the annual senior play at Newton high school on January 22 and 23. The leading parts will be portrayed by Vincent Wentworth and Elizabeth Harris.

GANDHI'S WIFE GETS 6-WEEKS IN JAIL

Bombay, India, Jan. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Mohandas K. Ghandi, who is almost as great an idol among India's unlettered multitude as her husband, the Mahatma, was sentenced at Surat today to serve six weeks in prison for urging the villagers to a campaign of boycott and civil disobedience.

Miss Maniben Patel, daughter of the imprisoned president of the Nationalist Congress was sentenced to three and a half months at hard labor plus a fine of 100 rupees for assisting at an unlawful assembly.

Sentences of two years at hard labor were imposed today on two other Pathan leaders of the nationalist movement, Abdul Fuffar Kahn, sometimes called the frontier Gandhi," told the magistrate who sentenced him that prison terms and criminal charges would get the government nowhere.

MRS. PINCHOT RAPS BANKERS

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 15—An attack on international bankers who persuaded the American people to put money into Germany, France and South America "in spite of the fact that the risks were altogether bad, and a warning that Wall Street financiers were working to kill a congressional bond issue intended to bring about economic relief featured a radio broadcast by Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Gifford Pinchot.

"They, the big bankers, did not care what happened to the issues they sold," Mrs. Pinchot declared. "They got their percentage for floating the bonds all right—and today they are 'sitting pretty' when the people to whom they have sold these securities are on the rocks."

Pennsylvania's latest contestant for the congressional seat of Louis T. McFadden condemned the ruthless policy of present-day civilization where "lots of work means lots of the means of life."

According to the girl, Healey called on her last night and they went walking. They became involved in an altercation, she said, and suddenly he drew out a revolver and said he would kill her and himself.

When she screamed in terror, Healey ran, but was found by police hiding in bushes in a nearby vacant lot.

SPLIT HAIR DEPRIVING YOUNG WOMAN OF A HIGHER LEARNING

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

IT IS TO BE HOPED that some way will be found by which that Braintree young woman may be given the scholarship prize money which she was awarded last June for standing first in her class in high school. As I understand it, she had intended to enter Simmons College, but was forced to change her plans and now intends to go to the nurses' training school of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The trustees of the scholarship fund have felt bound to withhold the scholarship, on the ground that it is supposed to be given for higher education and that a nurse's training is not higher education in an exact sense of the term. Another news story makes it more specific by explaining that the scholarship conditions specify "college training."

This last, I admit, will be rather hard to get around, since obviously a nurses' training school is not a college. No doubt it is well that trust funds be administered strictly according to specifications, but in this case I cannot see why a bit of loose construction would not be just as well and generous.

It's "Higher" but Not College

The intent of the fund is obviously to allow the ranking scholar of a high school class to pursue his or her education further. It is possible that when the fund was established, a college course was the only kind of higher education that guaranteed genuine educational values. But many kinds of advanced occupational education have come into being of late. Nobody else, of course, is entitled to the scholarship. The winner's intentions to farther her education are not questioned. Obviously she has a right to choose the kind of education she prefers. In this case strict construction seems not only hair-splitting, but will serve actually to nullify the purpose of the fund.

If the phrase says not "college" education but only "higher" education, I do not believe the trustees have a leg to stand on. Higher education is obviously the education that comes after high school. And the testimony of physicians, hospital chiefs, and superintendant of nurses is unanimous that the education of the nurse, today constitutes a higher education even in a fairly strict use of the term. Candidates for the training schools of reputable hospitals must be high school graduates; the training is long and arduous, highly technical and specialized, but not entirely without elements of general education.

Columbia and many state universities give the degree of B.S. for nursing training. In Boston, Simmons College is affiliated with at least one hospital and gives its degree for a five-year course of combined practical work and college courses. Many kinds of nursing cases may not be undertaken except by nurses trained by this kind of training. Nursing may not be a learned profession in the usual sense of the word, but there seems to be no doubt that its rigorous training of selected young women is "higher" education, in any sense of the word you may choose.

B. S. Degree Wrongly Given

There is no doubt whatsoever that many kinds of schools that only a few years ago were merely rapid training schools are today putting up the bars. Formerly they admitted anyone who could pay the fee, gave a two or three-year course restricted absolutely to technical essentials, and turned their products out with a certificate—trained, perhaps, but not educated. Today the tendency is toward selective entrance requirements, emphasis on a high school diploma, a longer course than previously, and elements of a liberal education as well. Sometimes the graduating certificate is a B.S. degree.

I wish some other degree could be found than the B.S., which ought to be restricted to graduates of a rigorous university course in physical science. It should not be given to graduates of business courses, training in office work, nursing, physical education, library work, domestic science, and the like. Some other degree might very well be devised to mark the completion of an adequate education in useful and specialized occupations which, however, are not learned professions, such as law, medicine, engineering, and the like.

The result of all this is that the old fashioned, limited, elementary "business college" for boys and girls is on the skids. Instead, we have departments of universities offering a far more complete education and training. Schools of physical education are extending their curriculum to four years, offering pre-medical work, and giving degrees. Library work has become a highly specialized occupation in the same way; so has scientific dietetics and institutional management. At Cornell they teach hotel-keeping! And the best private schools for secretaries are approximating as nearly to a liberal arts college course as they can.

So, I suspect, the best thing the Braintree trustees can do is to bow gracefully to a changed conception of education and give the young woman the money which she has earned and which she intends to apply in the way for which it was intended.

Lefavour Changed Education Plan

But I cannot close without mentioning the man who, perhaps more than any other in Boston, has been responsible for this changed condition in "higher" education. He is President Lefavour of Simmons College, who is retiring after an administration of 30 years. He was the first and has been the only president of Simmons College. He was brought to Boston around 1900 from Williams College, where he was dean, to plan and direct the new experiment in education endowed by a Boston business man named Simmons—useful professional education of college quality for girls who are not academically minded but want to make something of themselves, to hold down superior jobs.

The Simmons graduate has long been well and favorably known in Boston, as business woman, librarian, nurse, dietitian and domestic scientist, and so on. President Lefavour created a new kind of school for women, and the proof of it is to be seen in the arguments offered by so many competent people and institutions in behalf of the young woman from Braintree.

Simmons has always found it hard to raise endowments. A dozen years ago it suffered a bitter disappointment in that respect. Let us hope that in the near future Boston will support her own unique school as it deserves to be supported.

UNIFICATION OF METROPOLITAN AREA PUSHED

Referendum Planned on Beale Proposal to Band All Municipalities

Voters of the metropolitan district will have an opportunity at the State election next fall of voting on a plan for a "Metropolitan Boston" in which each city and town shall be a borough, according to Prof. Joseph H. Beale, of Harvard Law School.

Prof. Beale is chairman of the committee appointed by Mayor Curley to consider formation of a Greater Boston, and is co-author with Robert V. Lee of House bill 1004, which last year failed of legislature put over to this session. The bill would create a metropolitan city with a population of 2,22[illegible] making this area one of the four largest cities of the country.

CITIES UNCHANGED

"A referendum will be presented to the people of all the cities and towns in the metropolitan district next fall," said Prof. Beale. "A referendum feature will be added to House bill 1004 and if the Legislature turns it down, petitions for a referendum will be circulated.

"The local government of the cities and towns in the metropolitan district is not interfered with in any way. The only organization affected is the metropolitan district organization.

"By this bill the district becomes a metropolitan city, administered by the same commission, appointed in the future by a metropolitan council elected by the people of the district, and with its appropriations made by the same metropolitan council.

TOWNS FAVORED

"By the terms of this bill there are to be elected a president of the metropolitan city and a council, consisting of one representative of each city and town with additional representatives for each 20,000 inhabitants. This weights the council a little in favor of the country districts, and gives a decided predominance in the council to the towns and smaller cities.

"This is the only plan ever presented for the reorganization of the metropolitan district which leaves the towns intact. The New England town is the most successful organization ever invented for the government of small areas. To retain this local organization is of the highest importance.

IMPROVE DISTRICT

"The metropolitan city will not only voice the needs of the district but will develop itself in planning for the development of the district as a whole.

"A solution of the railroad problem satisfactory to the whole district might be pushed through, a development of water communication might be secured, city planning would take a broader scope, and taxing would be based upon the interests of every part of the district."

Fight Opens to Ban Service Charge

George W. Fitzgerald, of the Everett board of aldermen, has introduced an order requesting the public utilities commission to order the Malden Electric Company and the Malden & Melrose Gas Light Company to discontinue their 50 cent service charge on all meters.

Loiterers Barred at Malden City Hall

Because persons at Malden City Hall have been violating the rule prohibiting loitering in corridors and in front of offices, police were ordered today to keep the hallways and stairways clear of such persons. A special officer is to be assigned to this duty.

"Hitting it up again, eh?" Fitz asked.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Daisy Beaumont, vivacious young blonde, is arrested and charged with "soliciting." Arranged before Judge Ethel Moore, she denies the charge and claims she is being "framed" by the vice cops. The judge, however, sends her to Bedford reformatory for three years. Capt. Jim Fitzpatrick of the homicide squad believes Daisy is innocent and has her released. In the meantime four men are found murdered in a warehouse. Capt. Jim investigates the case and is convinced that "Big Boy" Belmonte is responsible. Jim goes to "Big Boy's" office and takes him to headquarters. Daisy hears it was Capt. Fitzpatrick who freed her. Chief Burton releases Belmonte and Capt. Jim swears to get the "Big Boy" and his whole gang.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY

By JACK LAIT

Author of "The Big House," "Put on the Spot" and "Gangster Girl." Adapted from a Story by W. R. Burnett, with Screen Play by John L. Mahin and Produced by Cosmopolitan Productions—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

FIGHTIN' JIM FITZPATRICK had four loves in his life. Beneath his rugged exterior beat a stout and sentimental heart. For 20 years he had been wedded to his wife and to his job. He had been true to both. And the day he donned his rookie uniform he led Mary to the altar. She was as proud of him as a flatfoot as she was as a captain.

Then there was little Michael, just turned seven. Pug-nosed, freckle-faced and, full of youthful devilry, the sun rose and set in his father. And Fitz he would not have swapped his boy for a throne.

Ed, his younger brother, was like a son to him, too. Ten years older, Jim had educated him, guided him, fought for him and placed him on the police force where he had become a sergeant. Ed's career as a policeman was the source of constant worry to the man who had disciplined his own character with the temper of hardest steel. And like steel he was flexible and bending to Ed's youthful frolics and follies. But he watched him with a wary and fatherly eye . . .

On the Sunday morning, two days after the Belmonte fiasco, Fitz was in the bathroom shaving, when his brother Ed, attired in shoes, socks, trousers and undershirt, his hair disheveled and his eyes bloodshot, but grinning, came in. Fitz took one look at him, frowned and shook his head.

"Hitting it up again, eh?" he asked, squinting into the mirror and drawing the razor down his cheek.

HAD A LITTLE PARTY

"I don't believe you ever were young, Jim," growled Ed, taking a seat on the edge of the bathtub and rubbing his head. "I was just out on a little party—and what a party—and what a head!"

"Yeah, well listen," and Fitz wiped his face with a steaming hot towel. "I got a few things to buzz to you—"

"Now, don't start that!" exclaimed Ed.

"No, not that—it's about Belmonte and his mob."

"They'll hang themselves. There's no use worrying. If they killed those Bojey Boys they'll get them from the other side. It looks like to me it's better to let them bump each other off—"

"It's murder, though. And Belmonte gets away with it. He rubs them out and he rubs in it. It's a personal fight from now. I'm going to clean up that gang."

Ed shrugged indifferently.

"It's a waste of time. You'll get no thanks. He's got this man's town all sewed up. Got the dough and the drag. You're going to step on the toes of some of the big boys who'll make it hot for you—"

"What the hell's the matter with you? You're a cop, ain't you? Or ain't you? Lay down in front of a big slime like that and let him tramp all over you?"

"Don't get personal, papa. Nobody's trampin' over me. I know you've got to lay for guys like Belmonte—that's that."

"That's a dandy line of talk, Listen. You wear a police badge don't you—"

"Listen yourself—did you see the morning papers? I read 'em on the way home last night. I was a little woozy, I'll admit, but the chief made some mighty broad statements—drastic cleanup in the department—and all that."

"Yea, yea, I know, but I thought I could bank on you. I've got a little job for you."

"You know you can lay your life on me, Jim. Spill it."

"That's better," and he placed both hands on his brother's shoulders and looked earnestly into his eyes. "Now, I'm going to build up a case against Belmonte that no habeas corpus writs or fixed judges can tear down. Being on the Vice Detail, you get around more than I do. Well, keep your ears and eyes open and give me the slightest tip you get—that's all."

STEEPLEJACKS THRILL CROWDS

Far above the street, two workmen, Andrew Olson, of Dorchester, and Arthur Swanson, of Dorchester, are watermopping the top of the Customs House tower, highest structure in New England.

"In my 31 years on this work I have never had an accident, nor has anyone who has been associated with me. I feel safer up here aloft than down in the street," he said.

MYSTERY SHOTS IN SOMERVILLE

Firing of four revolver shots into the home of Merrill Sykes in Aldrich st., Somerville, early today, gave police a mystery to solve and aroused the district.

Three bullets lodged in an outer wall and the fourth in a dining room wall.

Sykes, his son George and a visitor, Frank Wellington, were in the kitchen when the shots were fired.

Neighbors told police they had seen two men who disappeared in an auto immediately after the shooting.

Court Fees Drop $3000 in Waltham

The cash income of the Waltham district court last year was $3353 less than in 1930, according to the annual report of the clerk.

Shortage of student cash for outside dates has lead to a "back-to-the-dormitory" movement at the uptown institution. Three dorms have already taken steps to lower the cost of dates to students and to encourage the girls to entertain "at home."

The school of religious education has installed a well-equipped game room with bridge tables and ping-pong sets.

Loughlin Named to Head Police Group

Henry J. Loughlin was elected president of the Newton Police Benefit Association to succeed Patrick J. King at the annual meeting yesterday at police headquarters.

John J. Monaghan and Thomas F. Lasher were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively. Thomas J. Burke, Nicholas Veducelo, James El Halloran and George J. Hennrikus were chosen directors.

$100,000 Short Term Loan for Waltham

The possibility of an immediate shortage of cash in Waltham was averted when City Treasurer Harlan W. Cutter negotiated a loan of $100,000 on a short-term note yesterday in anticipation of revenue.

The note, maturing April 20, was taken by Faxon, Gade & Co. of Boston at 5.85 per cent interest.

Banquet for Alderman

Alderman Raymond F. Mooney of Malden is to be tendered a testimonial banquet Jan 28 at Assembly Hall by his campaign committee. State and city officials will be guests.

HOME FOR AGED SEEKS $50,000

Appeal for support in the $50,000 maintenance appeal for the Hebrew Home for Aged was made today by Gabriel M. Stern, general chairman of the campaign. The two weeks' drive opens Feb. 1.

Henry Yozell is chairman of a dinner to be held at Temple Chesed Shalom, Brookline, on the opening night. He emphasized the importance of a large attendance at the affair as an expression of appreciation for the service rendered by the home.

EX-CONVICT IN TOILS AGAIN

Two anonymous letters, both naming him as one of a trio of bandits who took part in a holdup August 24, in Roxbury, in which one of the bandits was shot, resulted in the arrest of Edward C. Maxwell, 27, of Dover st., a paroled prisoner from the State prison at Thomaston, Me.

Last night Maxwell was being held here while detectives were on their way to Concord, Reformatory to question Charles A. Ward and Arthur Harrington, convicted of the holdup.

Regardless of whether Maxwell is found to be connected with the holdup of Goldberg he will be returned to the Thomaston prison where he is wanted for violation of parole. He was serving a term in the Maine prison for larceny of about $50,000 by means of worthless checks.

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

"Yes"-Men

Did you ever meet a "Yes"-man
In your travels here and there?
It's always "yes" to everything.
How he gets in your hair!

He's always going to phone you
But the phoning isn't done;
Perhaps he's just forgetful.
And can't recall which one.

His promises are poison.
His heart has long been dead.
He "didn't mean to hurt you"
By anything he said

How can you tell a "Yes"-man
When seeking for a friend?
By the fact that every promise

—Murge.

FRANK CAPRA CALLS WRITERS BEST MOVIE DIRECTORS

'Forbidden' His Latest Success

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Frank Capra declares that writers make the best movie directors. He sees an identic task before the creator of fiction in print and the man who has to translate a story to the screen. In his Mark Sennett days Capra turned his brain and pen to humor, some months ago he sat down to a self-imposed job of thinking out a plot. He wrote out his tale, submitted it, and now it comes to the RKO Keith screen as "Forbidden."

Capra is known as Columbia's ace director. He knows pictures, stage, theatrical and movie, and we suspect he has a high appreciation of words to get from the pen and paper to the screen. Capra himself says:

"The director" he says, "has to do his writing with his camera, he tells his story on screen—in pictures. The author says his say with the pen—by words on paper. Primarily the director must be a story man, he must frame that story in his mind, so that he may adequately express it in the lights and shadows. The story that has its life on the printed page must live and breathe again on the silver sheet.

"The writer has to present his plot interestingly, so as to intrigue the editor, it must have story values, properly proportioned, properly set forth in language.

"The director who wants to succeed must go through the same mental processes as the creator of stories, and his editors are his audiences. Therefore, writers make the best directors; and every director should think up and think out stories."

Jo Sudden was Barbara Stanwyck when Capra directed through "Ladies of Leisure" and "The Miracle Woman."

Globe Trotter Snaps Navy

Unusual interest attaches to the coming naval maneuvers in the Pacific Ocean off Hawaii, because of the visit on the Battleship Row of the Prince of Wales, who is completing a world tour. For the first time in many years the Atlantic and Pacific fleets will be combined in one big war game. Prince Merlin Rose, who is one of our movie shows magnificent and special as per pictures of our fighting ships at sea in peace time, he indulges with a photographic hobby. He has been "shooting" Battleship Row and some of the navy ace shown steaming out to sea through rough seas, with newspaper men over head.

Upon the back in October a date Manchuria was turned in a Nevada & Jail hall. There were a score or more of entries including Joe Ray, former long distance runner with a grand prize of $1000 to the couple that survives. There still at it.

William Randolph Hearst, noted publisher asks the question: Who will be the next President? and discusses the qualities of the various themselves receiving the nominees and making sure their selections are not made by the international bankers. Mr. Hearst also emphasizes the imperative necessity of electing a real American whose motto will be "America First."

Jordan Hall Recital by Pianist

By MOSES SMITH

Audray Roslyn played a comprehensive and taxing program at Jordan Hall last night for her Boston debut before a responsive audience. Four unhackneyed selections from 17th and 18th century composers, Schumann's G minor sonata, Chopin's Fantaisie, a quartet of recent American compositions and pieces by Rachmaninoff and Liszt gave this charming young lady ample opportunity for display of variety of style.

Miss Roslyn did not always make use of this opportunity. Most disturbing was a heaviness of touch in the ancient numbers, quite out of the music's style. In the Chopin Fantaisie, most classical in outline of the Polish genius' major works, there was a pronounced tendency to overdrive, to press on, so that rhythmic outlines were blurred, the phrase telescoped.

This does not mean that Miss Roslyn does not know other manners, for she displayed often a delicate, crystalline touch, or, at the other extreme, great sonority. Where the romantic ardors were most needed, she excelled—notably in the Schumann Sonata, which was played as by a master. The four Americans

The net impression was of a youthful talent, unusual in its way, prone to the exaggerations of youth. Fortunately, Miss Roslyn's faults are of a kind that can be unlearned: while her indisputable gifts can be bought at no price.

MORRIS IS GIVEN ROLE

Paramount Star Replaces Gary Cooper in New Story by Hammett

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles Jan. 15 —One by one Gary Cooper's pictures are being handed to someone else. In each letter Gary postpones his return to Hollywood, he is enjoying his hunting expedition in the African jungles and he feels it is foolish for him to try to get back before he is entirely well. Chester Morris, who has an arrangement with Paramount, whereby he makes a certain number of pictures a year, will draw "The Glass Key," an original by Dashiell Hammett.

Louella O. Parsons

This mystery story was purchased expressly for Gary, but at a conference it was voted to make it a Chester Morris vehicle. Chester ought to be good, too. He hasn't failed us as an actor yet.

Cuts His Vacation

There will be no signs of regret on the part of Richard Barthelmess because he cannot go as far as the Orient this spring. Dick is very happy to go only to Tahiti and to be back here in Hollywood by the middle of March, for the simple reason that he likes The Cabin in the Cotton" by H. H. Kroll, his next picture. It goes into production in exactly 40 days. Darryl Zanuck, production boss of Warner Brothers, has arranged to bring Prof. Paul Green here to write the adaptation. Prof. Green of North Carolina University and author of "The House of Connelly," a stage hit in New York, is one of the best authorities on the south, in this country. He also will act as technical adviser.

Seen and Heard

Living under his real name of Alfredo De Biraben in Papeete, Tahiti, Barry Norton has completely disappeared from view the last six months. Norton, the big astonishing success in "What Price Glory," had a succession of poor pictures. He became so discouraged he decided to leave it all and live with the natives in Tahiti. Now he is returning to Hollywood to see if he can find a place in the talkies. He will arrive in San Francisco tomorrow. Hollywood friends have heard from Lawrence Tibbett, and he expects to arrive here in the late spring or early summer. If a picture details to be settled later

Only a Rumor

2-THIRDS RULE IS OPPOSED BY CALIFORNIANS

San Francisco, Jan. 15—California Democrats have opened a campaign for abolition of the two-thirds rule by the Democratic national convention this year.

Democratic leaders here commented upon reported statements from Jouett Shouse, Democratic national executive committee chairman, admitting that the rule was "bad" but that probably it could not be eliminated this year.

"I am not in agreement with Mr. Shouse that the two-thirds rule may not be abolished this year," said Richard E. Doyle, member of the Democratic state executive committee. "If, as he says, the rule is 'bad,' it should be abolished this year. Why wait another four years for another national convention which alone has the power to change the rule."

P. J. Haggerty, chairman of the Democratic county central committee of San Francisco, said:

"Our committee is thoroughly in favor of the unsatitution of majority rule for the present two-thirds rule in our national convention.

"I shall personally exert my own effort toward sending our delegates this year to Chicago pledged to vote for repeal of the two-thirds rule."

Spalding in Symphony Concert Next Sunday

Albert Spalding will give a recital next Sunday afternoon in Symphony Hall at 3.30, his only appearance of the season here. Andre Benoist will be his accompanist. The program will include Brahms' Sonata in D minor; Sonata in A minor, by Max Reger; Poeme, by Chausson; Rondo Brillante, by Weber; Prelude on old Italian themes, by Pilati; Elegie, by Faure; Minstrels, by Debussy. The Girl With Flaxen Hair, by Debussy-Hartmann.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

From the Envelopes!

"Thank you for mentioning my new song," writes Don Herman "but it might be interesting to some of your readers who want to be song writers to know that recently I was engaged to write a musical score for a play. My lyric collaborators were Henry Leblang (nephew of the late Joe Leblang) and Rob Glickstein. Well, to make a long story short, to date the show has played three performances and our royalties amount to three (3) dollars, of which my end is $2.20. Leblang's 80 cents and Glickstein's 20 cents. Tell your readers to stick to their bookkeeping jobs."

Frank Wistach's annual compilation of similes arrives . . . snappy lips . . . I like particularly Ted Cook's "Cautioned as a Rotarian-clerk" and Noel Coward's "Women are like guns: They should be struck regularly" . . . "Hold on to your columns," warns Maxwell Wilnyk, "Edgar Allen Poe and his 'Raven' for $16—and the manuscript of it the last time it was sold brought $200,000" . . . Huh! And "The Raven" was even funny . . . "What this country needs is three days," postcards D. Bisman, "is a good five-cent box of cigars" . . . "Incidentally, he adds, "Did you hear of the insipid chorus girl who didn't want to pose in the nude, as she had a little string around her finger?"

"Just to let you know," writes Eleanor Gibney "that I have read you for the last time. I never expect a Broadway columnist to be a gentleman—but, at least, he need not be a red and a rotter, and you are. How dare you say Greta Garbo has big feet and a large mouth?" She has the daintiest, loveliest most glorious and tiniest feet and mouth in the world, and if I ever meet you face to face I'll slap you." . . . Tush, tush Eleanor dahlink. I didn't say a word about her mouth. Just her feet, sweet, that's all.

More chain letters for the waste baskets . . . A copy of Maxwell Bodenheim's new book "Run Sheep, Run" . . . The very first chapter gives you an idea that the "sheep" do anything but run . . . "Again," insists John J. Dunn, "you pronounced it Ziegfield over the air—instead of Ziegfeld. Are you ashamed?" . . . Yessah, Mista Dunn, I'm ashamed—you spell my name Sobel, are you ashamed? . . . "About two weeks ago," says Leo A. W. Taylor "one of the handbag rags blossomed out with a photo of Harry K. Thaw descending the gangway upon his return from Europe. It showed him gingerly holding between his fingers an extra fedora. Seeing that I just two shakes (of a similar pattern) in the toting set-up, I sauntered ahead. I was wondering if you would be a good egg and ask him if my initials are on the one he has." . . . And that's the mail.

LOAN LEAGUES ARE OPTIMISTIC

Chicago, Jan 15 (AP) Increasing investments in some sections plus a steady flow of repayments on mortgage loans have led the nation's building and loan associations to anticipate 1932 receipts which will compare favorably with more prosperous years.

Reports from 25 state leagues of building and loan associations show that loan payments by borrowers on homes "have held up better than the most optimistic leaders in the business had hoped for."

The United States Building and Loan League, representing 44 state leagues whose 7,500 associations handle more than 80 per cent of the nation's $9,000,000,000 building and loan business, says money receipts indicated by those years-end summaries set the 1932 stage for a marked revival of business confidence.

Building and loan association officials generally, the league reports, are confident that 1932 receipts from new members will be greater than 1931. The volume of new stockholders joining associations in 1931 points to a gain over the figure at the end of 1930 when investors exceeded 12,250,000.

Jack Conway Picks Another Winner

W.	L.	P.C.

By JACK CONWAY

Gus Sonnenberg is still the Babe Ruth of the wrestling world. The old Dynamiter crashed through with a stirring victory over Billy Bartush of Chicago before 7000 fans at the Arena, and once more proved he is the most spectacular mat star of them all.

Bartush gave Sonny a scare when he won the first fall in 10m 30s with an inside crotch, body lift and slam

The third fall went to Sonny in 20m. 20s. Referee Sam Smith ruled that Gus unintentionally tripped Bartush. When the Chicago warrior went to the mat, Gus pinned him with an upside crotch hold. He lifted Bartush's legs in the air and pinned his shoulders to the canvas.

Sonny has always been resourceful when in a tight spot. He has been in the habit of pulling the unexpected. He lived up to past performances.

Lutze and Browning Battle to a Draw

Jim Browning and Nick Lutze went 30 minutes to a draw in one of the fastest matches staged in this city this season. During the closing minutes of the match, Jim and Nick made stout hearted efforts to win by using their pet holds.

Lutze nailed Browning with a reverse back fall but could not pin him. Browning then applied three top body scissors hold, but Lutze managed to wiggle out of them.

Rick Weaver of Chicago disposed of Jimmy Nelson of Sweden in 2m. 23s with an inside crotch, body lift and slam.

Carmichael of Woburn and Marvin Westenberg of Tacoma also battled on even terms for 30m. Lea Numa of Washington upset Tim Texis of Greece in 13m. 27s. with a hammer throw.

BRUINS TRAIL RANGERS, 3-1

Murray Murdock in 8.24 and Cook a minute later scored for the Blue Shirts in the second period.

Cook scored again in the third period in 4.09

Art Ross started Chapman at center. He was flanked by Dit Clapper and Alec Cook and had Hitchman and Foster on the defense.

150 IN ACTION AT WOLLASTON

As golf is played at the Wollaston Golf Club throughout the year, whether the thermometer is at zero or registering 100, and during rainy as well as fair days, it was not surprising that almost 150 turned out to enjoy a round Thursday.

Taking advantage of a perfect day for golf, 35 members and guests started at Wollaston before noon During the afternoon, the course was to a certain extent congested, for the p. m. starters all tried to get away between one and two o'clock

Alex Watson, professional at the Hudson River Country Club who played in the state open championship two years ago at Brae Burn, was the low scorer with 70

One of the outstanding feats at Wollaston was the deuce on the 18th hole by John Barbour, who drove the green and dropped his putt for an eagle

Despite the fact that it is only the middle of January, the Wollaston course is not only dry but the greens are fast and true. Although the local rules demand that players take preferred lies everywhere, it is possible to play them as they lie, without severely handicapping the contestants

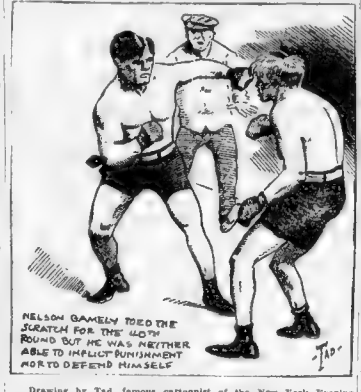
When Wolgast Beat Nelson for Title

JUST BEFORE THE FINISH



Drawing by Tad, famous cartoonist of the New York Evening Journal, was published in this newspaper the day after the fight.

This series of "Finishes of Old-Time Fights" will appear in the Boston Evening American sport pages throughout the winter.

Today's is a short tale of the fight at Richmond, Cal., in which Ad Wolgast toppled Battling Nelson from the lightweight throne. It was in the fortieth round when the Dane was staggering around, helpless and blind, that the referee ended the gruelling battle. It took place on February 22, 1910.

By W. S. FARNSWORTH

Ad Wolgast of Cadillac, Mich., won the lightweight championship in one of the bitterest battles of all ring history He tore the crown from the brow of the erstwhile unbeatable Dane Battling Nelson of Hegewisch Ill It took 40 rounds of the most savage fighting to earn the verdict. But from the time he stepped into the ring Nelson was a doomed champion.

Nelson Meets Defeat Gamely

Like Bonaparte the great Dane met his defeat stoically. Game to the very last, he stood his ground. Blinded by the blows of his younger and more vigorous rival, scarcely able to raise his hands in defense, he still pleaded to be allowed to continue. Referee Eddie Smith had warned the seconds of the Battler at the end of the 39th round that unless they threw in the sponge he would stop the fight

Smith was forced to make good his threat. The handlers of Nelson who had been him in many a tight corner in his long and glorious career, had still the hope of despair. They refused to save the dying gladiator the prolonged agony of a lost cause. When Wolgast had Nelson completely helpless and tottering in that fatal 40th round, the referee humanely motioned the grand old Dane to his corner.

Dane Anxious to Continue

This round started with Nelson walking after Wolgast swung in an erratic manner. He was easy to avoid, as usual. Referee Smith stopped the fight when Wolgast landed two hard rights to the jaw Nelson was on his feet, but in bad condition. But wanted to continue and shaped himself up as if about to tackle Wolgast, but Ad pushed him aside. The referee held Wolgast's hand aloft and declared him the new champion

Time of game: 8 15.

Two Maine sextets will show at the Boston Arena tonight in a series of hockey double-headers against two Boston institutions when Boston University meets Bates and Northeastern clashes with Bowdoin

Both local outfits will be favored as they are enjoying successful seasons

Both Bowdoin and Bates have been greatly handicapped this year by warm weather. They practice on outdoor rinks, and the poor weather has given them little opportunity to work.

The visiting sixes, however have veteran teams, and they are expected to furnish plenty of competition.

Bates is particularly strong It has a veteran six, and Slymn is one of the best college goalies in New England. Bates' only weakness is in poor spares

Boston University is in perfect shape tonight. Art Wilson and Nate Herman have recovered from their sickness and are ready to play.

Stockton Bonspiel at Country Club

At the Country Club today opens the three-day annual Stockton bonspiel for the Howard Stockton and for the Clyde Park cups

There will be four Country Club teams in the competition

Passing the Puck

As Art Ross and Lester Patrick have considerable influence with the board of governors of the National Hockey League, it is very likely that the possible changes in the rules will be acted on favorably.

Although all three suggestions will tend to speed up the game, the fans are most interested in the one which keeps six players in action at all times, due to a substitute coming into the game as soon as a teammate is penalized.

Maurice Roberts, the former Somerville High school boy, who was taken on by the New York Americans as a spare goalie at the beginning of the season, is delivering in fine style for New Haven, since Sprague Cleghorn recalled "Flat" Walsh.

Joe Doyle failed to dress for the Rangers as was Eddie Shore in not playing with the team that is the Bruins. The Bruins have been shot to pieces by injuries during the past fortnight and the failure of the star defense man to dress for the Ranger game started some talk regarding "lead swinging."

Dunny Marcotte, who came in the Reg Noble deal with the Montreal A. A. A. made a fine impression against Providence in his professional debut. He is fast and rugged and a quick thinker.

CUBS' STARS BACK TO FACE EAGLES

The Bruins Cubs will be at full strength when they meet the New Haven Eagles at the Boston Garden tomorrow night Paul Runge and Jack Pratt will be in their customary places when the Cubs take the ice.

The two Cube players returned to Boston today after opening last night in the Bruins ranks at the game with the Rangers in New York. They were called to New York by Manager Art Ross because of the serious condition of the Bruins personnel.

Decision of President Charles F. Adams of the Bruins not to break up the Cubs to help out the Bruins caused Ross to keep both players out of the Rangers game and send them back to Boston.

Eddie Powers, pilot of the Cubs, will not leave the team to manage any other club it was reported this morning. It had been said that Powers would quit the Cubs to pilot the Detroit club of the National Hockey League.

PLANS MADE FOR SHARKEY, WALKER GO

New York, Jan. 13 (INS)—A Mickey Walker-Jack Sharkey bout in Madison Square Garden, New York was being planned today, following the scrapping of the Battle of the Palms' between Max Schmeling and Walker at Miami.

But while Jacobs was seeking a promoter, Jimmy Johnston, manager of the Garden announced he was negotiating for a fight between the Jersey Toy Bulldog and the Boston Gob here next month.

Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, the former middleweight champion, said he would agree to the Sharkey fight and Johnston late today put in a long distance call for Johnny Buckley manager of Sharkey

B. C.-TORONTO TILT THRILLED HOCKEY FANS

EAGLES LOST HARD FOUGHT CONTEST

Jon McCarthy is one of the keenest hockey fans that ever put a foot inside the Arena or the Garden. He has followed the game for many years, and there never was a more loyal Boston College rooter, for "B. C." McCarthy was with the Eagles 100 per cent. regardless of whether they won, lost or tied. Therefore, it is only natural that a Boston College game was the freakest he ever saw.

As Told to Bill Grimes
By JOE McCARTHY

Despite the fact that Boston College was beaten, I will always believe that the Greatest Game I ever saw was the B. C.-Toronto varsity game, played in the Boston Arena, on January 3, 1925.

The Eagles were not at their best that evening or they would have given the Canadian Intercollegiate champions a beating. It was early in the season, for the Eagles did not get underway until about Christmas. Coach Fred Reeves was moulding a club which afterwards came through and was awarded the college title.

Eagle Sextet Light, Inexperienced

Compared to Boston College Varsity was composed of a squad of giants. The Eagles were too light and lacked the experience of the Canadians.

From the opening faceoff, Toronto stepped into Boston College and the game soon developed into a battle. Although outweighed, the Eagles were not outgamed.

Although only two penalties were called, Red Groden, Tubber Cronin, Sonny Foley, Eddie Mullowney and Nick Tedesco all were forced to leave the game at one time or another to be patched up. But the Eagles kept coming back for more, with the result that it was one of the roughest games in years.

Sonny Foley Starred for B. C., Scoring Twice

Sonny Foley was the Boston College star, scoring both goals, but Ned Wright, who is now taking a P. G. course at the Boston Eye and Ear Infirmary, was head and shoulder above the other contestants.

Just one minute after the game started, Louis Hudson broke away with Paxton, who carried to the B. C. defense, and after pulling Mullowney and Jack Culhane out of position, passed to Hudson, who beat Jack Fitzgerald with a bullet shot.

Early in the next chapter Sonny Foley came through with the tieing goal on a pass from Tubber Cronin. That tally all but started a riot, for as soon as the game was tied, Varsity began to pile into the Eagles with every trick in the game.

For eight minutes B. C. managed to hold off the Canadians but then Red Porter broke from his own defense and soloed through for a goal, and before the period ended, Hudson scored again, this time on a pass from Ned Wright.

Trailing two goals entering the final period, Boston College fought as it never did before or since to get back in the running, but Varsity was too powerful and too experienced. Taylor and King combined for the fourth Toronto tally, but just before the final whistle, Sonny Foley converted another Cronin pass into the second and last B. C. goal.

Although they were on the losing end of a 4 to 2 encounter, Boston College gained many friends by its wonderful showing against such an all star veteran team as Toronto Varsity, holders of the Canadian intercollegiate championship.

Stage Set for Winter Carnival at Dartmouth

The stage is set for Dartmouth's 22nd annual Winter Carnival. It will start with arrival of special trains from Boston and New York on Friday, February 5, when skiing, and skating contests will be held out of doors and the Dartmouth swimmers meet Syracuse indoors. The Carnival Ball has been given up but the Queen of the Snows will be crowned out of doors at night in a great ice pageant.

On Saturday, Feb. 6, there will be more snowshoe, ski and skating events and hockey and basketball games with Yale. The two Boston and New York train specials will leave on Sunday.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

When Lutze and Browning signed for a 10-minute bout, DeGlane agreed to meet the winner. In the event of a draw it was agreed that the loss of a coin should decide which man would get the shot at DeGlane.

Neither Lutze nor Browning was able to take the advantage. Leon Burbank then tossed a coin in the air, "Head's" showed. Burbank after he took a look at the coin as it rested on the canvas.

So it will be Lutze against the champion at the Arena next Thursday night.

Perhaps fate will some day give Browning an opportunity to even the score for the defeat he received at the hands of DeGlane early in the season. On that occasion, the Frenchman bumped Browning's head against an iron post.

Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston of the New York Garden is trying to sign Jack Sharkey to meet Mickey Walker for a March date. If the match is arranged, Johnston will ask the New York Athletic Commission to recognize it as for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Schmeling's title was vacated in New York. Sharkey is called "the champ" when addressed by Jim Farley and his associates on the New York Commission.

Looks as if Schmeling and Dempsey will meet in an outdoor show in Chicago next Summer according to Nate Lewis of the Chicago Stadium. Nate says he has the match sewed up. Lewis has the backing of George Getz who promoted the second Dempsey-Tunney bout with Tex Rickard.

The New York Garden has set February 5 as the date for the Schaaf-Paulino bout. This match was originally billed for January 22 but was postponed when Jimmy Johnston tried to come to the assistance of Dick Dunn of the local Garden. Dunn wishes to promote the Schaaf-Dorval bout on January 29.

The boxing commission will be asked to decide if the Schaaf-Dorval bout is going to run for Sweeney.

Now that Max Schmeling has gone his way, Eddie Mack will give an axle to some fan at the Arena on next Wednesday night. As long as Mack does not hand the fans any foreign bonds as prizes, they won't kick.

Leslie Baker of Watertown and Billy Hood of England will meet in the feature ten-round event at the Argonne Club show. Baker fears a right hand punches will succeed where Mickey Bishop's wallops failed.

IOWA DUE TO PICK CROWLEY

Iowa City, Iowa, Jan. 15 (INS)—The successor to Rert Ingwersen as head football coach at the University of Iowa will be chosen from a field of three, it was learned here today.

Since Ingwersen's resignation, speculation has been rife as to the selection of the man who will lead Iowa from the slough of despair into the limelight of big ten football.

The three men being considered, it is said, are Jimmy Crowley of Michigan State, Chick Meehan, late of New York University and now of Manhattan College, and I. J. Armstrong of the University of Utah. Crowley, famous as a member of the four horsemen, is said to be the logical choice.

Bill Tilden Denies He Tried to Sign Vines as Pro

Big Bill Tilden, who meets Hans Nusslein at the Boston Garden next Thursday night, in a letter to Dick Dunn of the Garden denies that he has ever tried to lure Ellsworth Vines, National amateur champion, into the pro tennis ranks.

"That story that was first sprung in New York is absurd," wires Tilden. "I'm no promoter. Whether or not anyone else tried to do this I don't know—but I didn't. I'm a tennis player first, last and all the time."

Herrick Named Leader

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 15 (AP)—Anson S. Herrick, of Woodmere, N. Y., has been elected captain of the Yale freshman hockey team. He prepared at Kent.

ODDS DROP ON LOUGHRAN

New York, Jan. 15 (AP)—A 10-round bout with Tommy Loughran in Madison Square Garden tonight gives Steve Hamas, all-around athlete at Penn State College a few years ago, his first real chance to crash through into the top flight of American heavyweights.

The Passaic, N. J., youngster, whose brief professional career of 26 bouts has resulted in 26 victories, 23 of them by knockouts, rules the short-ender in the betting at 9 to 5.

A month ago Loughran would have been favored at 100 to 1 or any odds you liked, but his stock has taken a sharp drop since the clouting he suffered at the hands of King Levinsky here recently.

The Boston high school coaches met at the East Armory with Fred J. O'Brien to test the distance between hurdles for boys in the intermediate and junior events. The plan is to fit distances to the abilities of the boys in each division.

New Brunswick, N. J., Jan. 15 (INS)—Jack Grossman, Rutgers University's greatest all-around athlete, said today that within two weeks he would accept one of two offers tendered him by big league baseball clubs. He is a shortstop.

The Evil Spell of an ANCIENT PORTRAIT

A Vivid Story for Lovers of Romance

By a World-Famous Author

Frederic Arnold Kummer's LATEST NOVEL—

Starting Next Sunday!

COOL and aloof, above the high stone-mantel in the drawing-room of an English mansion, hung the painting. Only an ancestral portrait; the likeness of a Spanish Lady who had married into the English family centuries before. Yet that painting wove a web of intrigue in which the occupants of the house buzzed about like small and helpless flies. Strange creature, she influenced and dominated all of them with her insolent beauty and almost lured them to destruction with her cruel and bewitching smile.

Frederic Arnold Kummer tells about this diabolically beautiful woman in "The Spanish Lady," one of the most thrilling stories he has ever written. The famous author has outdone himself in this latest novel. It's a mystery tale, a detective yarn and a story of romance, all in one. Marry-Go-Round

THE WELL-DRESSED NECK IS A BIG ASSET

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

SOMETIMES, a business firm can be almost as solicitous as a mother, and as arbitrary as a wife.

• • •

Take a certain famous New York bank, for instance, which rules that all the men in its employ must wear high, stiff, white linen collars.

• • •

THAT'S good psychology!" Whoever made that rule knows his Emerson. "Style is the man"—particularly the style of his neckwear. Whether you are going after a job, or going after a woman, there's no better card of introduction than a nifty, becoming collar. One high enough to hide your Adam's apple.

• • •

A woman may love a man for his weaknesses, for his sins, even for his masterful brutality—but she has to love him in SPITE of his neck! No woman who has once seen a man's Adam's apple can ever feel quite the same romance for him. She can only close her eyes and try to remember how GOOD he is to her.

• • •

A woman's neck curves gradually and gracefully down from her chin to her shoulders; but, somehow, a man's neck always looks as if it had been just pasted on as an after thought. Like the fancy label on prohibition gin bottles.

• • •

Moralists may inveigh against the evils and temptations of the low-cut feminine bathing-suit. But not once again feel quite the same fundamentalist could find anything dangerous or "tempting" about a man with a coquettishly displayed Adam's apple.

• • •

Perhaps that's why lots of men at the fashionable beach resorts, took to wearing folded towels around their necks last summer. Nudism will never become a menace, so long as a man can look in the mirror and see his clavicle and the red streak around his throat.

• • •

If the stiff, high linen collar ever goes completely out of fashion, there will have to be an amendment to the Constitution making love and marriage compulsory. Those low, narrow, soft collars, which almost became the vogue a few years ago, very nearly succeeded in putting love "on the spot."

• • •

But the astute, snappy business-man never fell for them. He knew that there is nothing which gives a man such an "efficient," prosperous appearance as a well-dressed neck—and he stuck TO it!

• • •

Eve may have started all the trouble in the world; but if Adam hadn't been in such a rush to HELP her, the apple might never have stuck in his throat. And men would never have been condemned to the discomfort of a high, starched linen collar. That's ONE thing that men can't blame on women!

EMBERS OF LOVE ❖ By Hazel Livingston

'Dad' Meets Grandson Robin

"I'VE GOT young Sargent outside," said Lily Lou's father. He's waiting out by the stage door. I told him I'd——"

"Yes, out by the stage door. He didn't want to come in, but I told him sure, why not. I run into him as we was leaving. Right out on the sidewalk. He's changed a whole lot, Lily Lou. Kind of lost that way that grated on me. He seemed kind of blue, walking along by himself as I spoke to him. I hope you don't mind—"

"Don't mind . . . oh, no . . . no. It doesn't matter. Is he coming in? Here?"

"I think he's got tired of waiting. I kind of forget him. Guess I'd better go along. Maybe I'll come over and see you at the hotel tonight. That is, if you aren't busy——"

"Oh—no. I'm not busy. Do come—"

"Or if you change your mind, I'm staying over at the Traveler's Hotel on Mission st. I figured I'd rest up a day tonight."

"Yes—I'll call you. I'll—All right, dad—goodbye till then—I'll see you tonight—"

She went to the mirror, looked at herself anxiously. It was too late to change. She had better receive Ken this way, in make-up—with some of the think of it wiped off. It didn't matter anyway. It was really quite funny . . . quite funny.

"Come in!" she said.

He stood in the doorway.

He was, as her father said, changed. She bit her lip. An old, nervous habit, forgotten years ago . . .

NICE TO COME

"It was nice of you to come" she said, looking at his broad shoulders, his tanned face, his whole alien being.

He took her hand. "It was nice of you to let me come. I would not have intruded, but your father——"

"Yes—he told me."

"I've been to every performance, of course. But I wouldn't have intruded——"

"No, of course not," she murmured, scarcely conscious of what she was saying. There seemed to be nothing left to say.

Here she was, and here he was, and five years, five long, hard years stood between them.

"You've changed," she said finally.

"So have you."

"I've—I've done what I started out to do."

"I always knew you would. I was never surprised when your name flared in the headlines, and I read about you in magazines and things. I was fine—"

"Fate! It was hard work! Oh, Ken, it's been hard. You don't know. I couldn't tell you. Besides . . . what does it matter. It's all over. Will you have a cigarette" She did not—tell me about yourself."

"Not much to tell. It's you who—"

"Who made the front page? No—I saw your name in the papers often enough. I saved the clippings—"

"Nothing to my credit," he said.

"Oh! Some would think so. But not me. If you did read about me, didn't you think I might have liked to hear from you? A word of congratulation—a line—something" That was hard to take, Ken—"

She bit the moment to say that. It slipped out.

"I'm flattered that you think I did. All those years I've had to live down the hurt of having been left—"

The look in his eyes stopped her. She was suddenly too tired, too spent after the performance, the exciting meeting him, her father, everything, to go on.

STILL IN MAKE-UP

"It doesn't matter." She walked over to the dressing room, dabbed at her brimming eyes. Remembered that she was still in make-up, and any minute Marie would be back with Robin . . . with Robin . . .

"You may as well know that I have a little boy—five years old." His stared at her.

"You mean that you, that you have—"

"Yes. You and I. I called him Robin."

His was silent for so long that she couldn't bear it. He shouldn't take it that way. What right had he to look at her as if she had robbed him, when it was all his fault, when he had left her alone, to work and fight—

"But you—but' I—"

She was too tired. She couldn't tell him.

"Ken, don't you see that I—that I couldn't—"

"Lily Lou—darling—"

His lifted her in his arms, rocked her as she used to rock the Bubchen, crooning over her, whispering the foolish endearments of long ago. And she wept, and clung to him, and wanted to tell him, to ask questions . . . but she was too tired . . . and anyway what was the use, when they were together again?

• • •

"I waited for hours, sir," Maria told Tony. "I had Robin in bed, and the child was asleep, but they woke him up. I dent like to have him woke up. He a hy-strung child. He hadn't ought to be woke up like that, and get all excited.

'Broke' Now Because They Signed on Dotted Line

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE DUNCAN sisters are broke. A couple of years ago they had millions scattered all over the place. Now they're busted flat.

"And it's all because we signed on the dotted line" they cry "People came to us. They said, 'Girls, this is a great little proposition, this will make you money so fast that your head will swim, and you won't have to give it a second thought. Just sign here, and then go off and forget it."

And that isn't the only way we get ourselves busted, either. Some of us squander all our happiness, our peace, our liberty and self-respect because it is so easy to "sign on the dotted line"!

We want to be good fellows. We like to be obliging. We hate to say "no," and someone is always banging around wanting us to say "yes."

Before we're fairly out of the kindergarten it starts. People wanting us to think the way they think People wanting us to do the things they do. People wanting us to live the way they live. People wanting to use us in countless different ways —coaxing, arguing, flattering, pleading, threatening, urging, scolding, whining, pulling sob stories. Dying into tantrums to make us do what they want us to do.

And always they're as full of bright promises as a bond salesman. If we listen to them they'll make our fortune for us. We'll always be happy if we do as they say—always safe and content.

Sign away our right to be ourselves and live our own lives and think our own thoughts. Sign as blithely, with as little thought of the morrow as Vivien and Rosetta signed.

FOR ALWAYS WE ARE SO SURE THAT WE CAN TAKE CARE OF OURSELVES!

Yes, maybe folks are taking advantage of us, imposing on us. But we'll take care of all that! Give us time and we'll work things out. And, for the present, it won't do any harm to let them think they're having their own way.

And then, some day, we wake to realize that youth has gone and opportunity has passed and the years are coming to an end.

AND WHAT HAS BECOME OF LIFE? What has happened to all our fine ambitions, to our dreams, our flaming resolves? They're gone! We let someone take them all away! We squandered them because we couldn't say "NO!"—and "signed on the dotted line."

Don't do it! Make yourself unpopular if you must, but don't "yes" your life away. Be generous. Be helpful. But protect your own fundamental rights to BE YOURSELF. For, if you don't nobody else will.

Boiled Rice in Savory Blend

By MARTHA LEE.

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WAAB

MOST EVERY family seems to boast at least one member with an anti-rice complex. Which we find can usually be traced to the soggy rice puddings [illegible] ideal children's dessert.

Today we recognize rice as valuable in delicious desserts, of course, but why such a limited use for one of the greatest foods that the earth produces? Rice really has almost unlimited [illegible] sauces, soups, croquettes, [illegible] as well as endless [illegible]

Right now I have a big bowl of turkey soup standing out on the back piazza and, in the refrigerator a bowl of fluffy rice waiting to be added to the soup [illegible] rice in your soup is a general rule

Even though your family [illegible] rice in its natural state, that in plain boiled—or in puddings, here is a rice recipe that I think will be approved by all and sundry as a delicious meat substitute:

SAVORY RICE

3 tbsps. minced onion
2 minced green peppers
4 thin slices bacon
2-3 tsp. salt
½ cupful fresh or canned mushrooms may be added if liked

Cook the bacon until crisp, remove it from the pan and cook the onion and peppers in the bacon fat for five minutes. Then add them to the rice leaving a tbsp. of bacon fat in the pan. Chop and add the mushrooms seasonings and the cooked bacon cut into dice; turn the mixture back into the pan in omelet shape, brown one side, slip a knife under and turn so as to brown the upper side.

Improper For Girl to Speak

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN:

[illegible] walked on the [illegible] for a long time and knows by sight all the business men working on that floor, would it seem forward for her to speak to any of these men? A READER.

She mustn't make this forward and very justly so. It isn't a case of or for "friendliness"; it is a question of breeding and good manners.

House Warming

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are building a new home and my friends want me to have a house-warming. Is it proper for me to have it, or should my friends send out the invitations?

R.

It should be your party, you should be the hostess and your husband the host, and you should send out the invitations in both of your names.

Daily True Story

The Good Samaritan

TOM NOONAN drove a taxi; he owned it himself and he was as proud of it as though it were a blooded horse; Mary, his wife and the two kids laughed at him on account of the time he spent polishing it.

Nobody was stirring. Tom drove slowly past Central Park looking along Fifth Ave. alert for the sight of a stray face, but all he saw was a young man or what looked like a young man huddled on a bench.

"Poor fellow," said Tom, and drew up along side of the curb, stopped, got down and walked over to the silent figure. "Hey, there" he shook his arm, "wake up. You'll freeze to death.

"I believe," said the young man, "that you are the so-called good Samaritan. The question is how good are you. Now listen to me. I haven't a cent in the world, these clothes belie me. I had made up my mind to lie on this bench until some one came along and rescued me, and if nobody came why that would be my hard luck."

"It sure would," said Tom

"It sure would," echoed the other, somewhat [illegible] being that [illegible] money in New York one is not exactly welcome in the best circles. Do I make myself clear?"

"Come ahead," said Tom, "but it's pretty cold outside."

"But having no money I couldn't ride inside," said the other solemnly. "I would then be a mere passenger—no, it's outside or nothing."

STORY IN THE PARK

Now everyone know that a driver's seat on a taxi has little room to spare, and the young man finally agreed to transfer himself to the tonneau, where he promptly fell asleep and effectually barred Tom a picking up a passenger.

Tom rambled along wondering what to do with him; he could take him to a police station or drive him to the Salvation Army —but somehow he hated to do either, and at, last, purely in the spirit of Christmas, he took him to the flat where he shared with his family.

But first he crept up the stairs and explained the situation to Mary.

"He ain't got a penny," he said in a whisper, "but I know he's been, better days—he's sort of educated and polite, and I thought, seeing he's half dead with the cold and maybe had a drop too much to drink, I'd put him in my cot and I could sleep with the kids."

"It's just like you, Tom," said Mary, "Like's not when he wakes up in the morning he'll be able to give you a line on himself."

Tom carried his unhidden guest up two flights, put him to bed with his clothes on, put the taxi away for the night in a neighboring garage and then turned to [illegible] on the uncomfortable sofa, cursing himself for a soft-hearted fool.

BANK GIANTS FAILED TO FORESEE LOSSES

By B. C. FORBES

Many readers imagine that the "big men" in the financial world are so smart they always know what is going to happen in the security market and that this wonderful ability enables them to load up with stocks at the bottom, thereby reaping gigantic fortunes.

Indeed, not a few letter writers have vowed that the most powerful "financial interests" have been deliberately depressing the stock market in order to be able to scoop up the choicest issues for next-to-nothing. It just ain't so!

Proof? First, have you noticed that practically every investment trust, no matter how or on all its sponsors may had to record terrific losses? Second note, in many cases millions even the best managed of these leading banks have had to write off because of losses arising off means that they had to kiss goodbye to the money.

Third—And in a sense the most convincing proof of all—consider what happened to the First Security Company, wholly-owned adjunct of the First National Bank of New York, famous as the most profitable banking institution in America with a dividend record of 100 per cent a year.

Assets Shrink 44 Million

The directors of the First Security Company are such eminent notables as J. P. Morgan, former partner; Arthur [illegible] former manager owner in America of railways [illegible] Baker, one of the dean of American [illegible] Walter S. Gifford, president of the largest [illegible] and Anson W. Taylor, phone & Telegraph [illegible] Taylor, retired United States Steel Corporation [illegible] Reynolds, capable, conservative president of the First National Bank, Leas Cass Ledyard, leading lawyer; John R. Morron, George B. S. George, Samuel A. Welldon.

Well, what has happened to this security company directed by such conspicuous leaders? Let President Reynolds tell the tale:

"When the company's last dividend was declared on March 10, the market value of its assets had exceeded its indebtedness by more than $38,000,000. The market value of these assets is now less than its indebtedness by approximately $6,000,000."

If Messrs. Morgan, Baker, Lamont, Gifford, Taylor, Reynolds, James and others had known what was ahead, do you imagine for a moment they would have incurred this severe shrinkage of $44,000,000 in less than forty-four weeks?

No. Even the biggest of our financial magnates didn't foresee the severity of last year's debacle. It will be any consolation to those much lower down the financial scale, who have suffered serious financial misfortunes, they can be assured that the number of millionaires and multi-millionaires who have lost either every dollar or almost every dollar would form a lengthy—and most amazing—list.

Big Opportunity for Merchants

Shoppers complain that many stores are awkwardly short of help. Even though trade is by no means extraordinarily brisk customers state that it is common rather than uncommon to have to wait to be served. When I did my Christmas shopping I observed the same thing. Also, I noted that stocks were extremely restricted.

Isn't it time to start the return towards normalcy? Merchants won't always be able to replenish their stocks at the low prices now ruling.

The stock market lately has enjoyed, if not a boom, a boomlet. Since January 5 the average quotation for a list of fifty representative stocks has advanced more than a dozen points, equal to fully 18 per cent. Both domestic and foreign bonds have also improved. Were this upward trend to continue a little longer, it would prove the best possible tonic for sentiment, for business, for industry and for employment.

31,000 HEARST MARKET VIEWS STOCKHOLDERS OF BROKERS

San Francisco, Jan. 15 (U.S.)—With the turn of the new year the vast army of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., shareholders has been swelled to more than 31,000, according to a statement made public today by executives of that corporation.

Investment and banking circles have been greatly impressed by the remarkable world-wide distribution of the class "A" 7 per cent preferred shares of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., during a period of adverse economic conditions.

Nearly every state in the union has its quota of Hearst shareholders and, besides the United States, dividend checks are dispatched every three months to England, France, Germany, China, Egypt, Canada, Switzerland, Scotland, Phillippine Islands, Alaska, Panama Canal Zone, Central America, Hawaiian Islands, Mexico, Newfoundland, Porto Rico and Virgin Islands.

What is considered a most remarkable record is the fact that over 31,000 shareholders have been enrolled in this $124,000,000 corporation within 18 months following the original announcement of William Randolph Hearst employe-customer thrift-installment plan for the purchase of the 7 per cent preferred shares.

STATE ST.—

Hears:

That the market acted extremely well on the sell-off from the highs of Thursday. As measured by the price indices a considerable cut has been made in resistance known to lie just under and above the low of last October 5. It seems safe to assume that fairly fast action will result on the upside once this has been whittled away.

The Outlook

Besides the fundamentals every one is talking nearly the rail conference, emergency credit plan easy money policy of the Reserve and efforts to balance the budget there are two other developments of note. First is the unanimous speech of Under Secretary Mills set for the last of the month in New York which pledges the new administration's fierce government plan of balance. A few feel his remarks already in the price list of the market pose. This assumes the trend will be generally up until then. Next in importance is the Democratic platform said gold at New York, European propagandists have apparently seized inflation talk as a further weapon in their war on the dollar. Whether this will become more noticeable must wait on actual developments, as there is no reliable way of judging the present tenure of foreign financiers.

Opinion as to the true significance of any earmarking tendencies can best be given after an examination of bond and bank stock prices. It then is decided heaviness in these markets accompanying the earmarking, withdrawal from the market should be made.

Favor Utilities

Action of some leading utilities in the past few sessions calls for a change of front by those who have consistent, avoided the group since this column has reflected the defiance point along it now seems proper to present their new position. MARKET'S RISE MADE DESPITE ITS CRITICS

By FRANK H. MELOON

The stock market's rise of the past week or so has been made in the face of its critics, who have included a number of the market letter writers for various exchange houses. Despite the critics "the customer rooms have again been filled to overflowing in a number of the Wall and State St. financial establishments. Traders like a market in which day-to-day profits can be made.

• • •

The wires appear to be crossed in financial quarters where the same people are urging Federal Reserve inflation and railroad wage deflation simultaneously. The two do not appear to fit together very well. Many in State St. now look for the Brotherhoods to get a better deal than some of the Wall St. financial interests a while ago were openly declaring they would receive . . .

Faith in New England is strongly exhibited by First National Bank Treasurer Charles F. Adams [illegible] states has company is planning expansion in this territory. A few years ago a small minority of stockholders were eager; calling for a merger with Kroger on a share-for-share basis. That First National leaders rejected this appears to have been a wise move, all things considered. First National has 6000 stockholders, many of them home. Mr. Adams has stated that $200 000 000 is spent every year by chain stores for New England products.

Rebuttal of charges of laxness in methods of listing securities made by the Senate Banking Committee against the Boston Stock Exchange was contained in a report which the governing body of the National Association of Securities Commissioners, whose proceedings has just been published.

• • •

This committee spent four days in Boston and their report as the result of personal investigation states in part:

"This exchange is operated by a few active and conservative group of men, and they exercise reasonable care in determining whether or not securities should be listed. No securities are listed for the express purpose of exemption in the states permitting such exemptions."

• • •

At the time its exemption was withdrawn from the Boston exchange the Indiana commission contended that its officials appear before them with the files of the organization. This the exchange declined to do, although expressing its willingness to throw open its files here. The National Association thereafter appointed its special committee to meet in Boston.

Sterling Steps Up in Sharp Advance

The New York cable rate was 3.50 against 3.46 yesterday and the Paris rate 89 against 88 yesterday. The improvement was helped by the arrival of further gold from India which was reported being sold to Paris to help reduce London's short term commitments to France.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

LAST thing the sheet friends of the market desire is a runaway advance, even if this were possible. More than anything else a stabilized market is the objective of the most influential interests. Especially is this the objective in the Government bond section of the markets.

Shareholders Approve New Stock Issue

A special meeting of the stockholders of Columbia Gas & Electric Corp. authorized creation of 250 000 shares of new 5 per cent convertible cumulative preference stock, par value $100, which will be convertible at the option of the holder at any time before February 15, 1937, into five shares of common stock. The directors had previously recommended creation of the preference stock, to be used for payment of stock dividend on the company's common stock, which now receives $1.00 a share in cash annually.

See Dividend Hint in Steel Offering

Fact that the U. S. Steel Corporation has thus far failed to make any announcement regarding its annual stock offering to employes, has led to belief in some quarters that this action may hinge upon the results of the coming dividend meeting. If any offering is to be made at all this year, Announcement regarding the offering to employes is usually made each year about this time.

May Postpone Announcement

Some observers are inclined to the belief that unless the Steel stock action is announced following next Thursday's meeting of the finance committee, it will be postponed until after the dividend meeting on the last Tuesday of this month. They purport to see in this step a hint that directors are planning to omit payments entirely, and would therefore base offering price to employes on the results of this action.

Voluntary Wage Cut Is Viewed

Action of Bangor & Aroostook officials and clerks in taking a 10 per cent salary cut, and shopmen's building a 10 per cent wage cut, both voluntarily, was seen as an indication of what will happen at the wage conference which opened yesterday. Road is not represented at the meeting, and observers are inclined to watch for actions like this, as "straws in the wind."

"Hopeful" Forecasts On "UD" 1932 Net

Current estimates on 1931 report of U. S. Industrial Alcohol, which will be issued in February, indicate the company will report a deficit of between $2 000 000 and $2,500 000 for 1931, income in 1930 was $4,194,806 before an inventory adjustment of $4,000 000, against $4,720 940 for 1929 or $2.96 and $12.63 a share respectively. After dividends, and inventory adjustment in 1930, there was a deficit of $4,583,206. On the basis of present contracts and price schedules an official of the company is reported to have estimated, contingent upon better business, the company could show "as high as $5 a share for 1932."

Sharp Advance In Bond Prices

Bond prices reached their lows on December 17, when 40 representative bonds sold at 73.36 as against approximately 80 yesterday on the 10 second grade rail bonds, which stood at 59.23 on December 17, are now at aproximately 73 on the average. Recovery in bonds, it is held, is due almost entirely to the gradual improvement in financial psychology.

Liggett & Myers Dividend Outlook

Reports current estimate that Liggett & Myers at the regular dividend meeting next week, will vote the annual extra dividend of $1 a share.

Reconstruction Credit Opinion

The opinion is held in certain quarters that it may not be necessary for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to use the entire $2,000,000,000 which will be available to it. About $500,000,000 capital, it is estimated, will take care of several problems, while large amounts are believed available from other sources who are in a position to help in correcting conditions. These include the National Credit Corporation, which will take care of collateral left unsold by banks and railway credit, which will help the carriers.

U. S. Steel Had to Borrow

Many brokers report that United States Steel common has been the most difficult to borrow in the past week. It is said there have been instances where 1000 shares were wanted and it was necessary to shop around to get stock certificates to make deliveries by the short sellers. Within a week the report on brokers' and domestic holdings of Steel common become public. This will show the extent of the floating supply recently, and may explain the lack of material for lending purposes as well as the fact that there has been a steady premium charged to the borrowers.

Higer Estimates On Carloadings

In some railroad circles there have been estimates that freight car loadings may reach a total of between 675 000 and 700 000 weekly toward the end of this month or some time in February, this would call for a substantial increase over the weekly figures reported recently. The last total, which covered the week ending Dec. 2 and included the New Year's holiday, was 503 323 cars.

Quiet Buying in Safeway Stores

Quiet but important buying is reported to have been coming into Safeway Stores recently because at current levels the $5 a share annual dend gives a yield better than 19 per cent. Some of the speculative interest has been shown during activity in the stock at times. Estimates have been that the company will show earnings of around $6 a share for 1931. Months ago Safeway was one of the popular recommendations of several of the commission houses. At that time there was quite a public interest in the stock, but most of the outsiders sold out during the decline in the general market late last year.

TEL. FORECAST ANALYZED

New York, Jan. 15 (INS)—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. president's statement that

"Preliminary summaries indicate the company earned its dividend for 1931 with a small margin, without taking into account a proportion of undistributed earnings of subsidiary companies" leaves some questions unanswered.

"He added: "Earnings of these subsidiaries, including Western Electric, taken as a whole, also exceeded their dividend payments."

In the first place unless the telephone company earned in the final quarter more than it earned in the third—an unlikely fact—the dividend was not covered for the second quarter in succession.

September quarter netted $2.12 a share, making total income for the first nine months of $7.01 a share. Thus, it would seem that the final three months netted little or $2 a share compared with a $2.25 dividend requirement.

Furthermore the statement that subsidiary earnings will be used to cover their dividends might be taken to mean some of the subsidiaries individually are behind. The market is especially interested in Western Electric earnings.

American Telephone, of course, is amply supplied with cash in amount sufficient, if directors so determine, to allow a maintenance of the present $9 dividend even if a small deficit were to be continued. However, under such circumstances the payment can hardly be considered secure.

Then too, the suggestion that only by combining all subsidiary earnings were their dividends covered last year removes the last vestige of the bull market cry of "great hidden earnings" for Telephone.

PRICES MIXED ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

Prices were mixed in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with changes confined to a narrow range. Boston & Maine prior preferred advanced 4 points to 62, while New Haven eased a minor fraction to 29¼.

American Telephone dropped around a point to 123, while New England Telephone was practically higher at 115¾. Edison Electric was unchanged from its previous closing level. General Electric was a minor fraction higher at 25¾.

New England shoe factories are generally more active. Production is now well above the December level. Manufacturers got a fair volume of orders for spring shoes in the recent markets at Boston and Chicago.

Some buyers are asking for better grades, at higher prices. This may be the first turn from the cheapening movement that has been going on for two years. Sole leather is firmer. Light soles, for women's popular price novelty shoes, are up three cents, ten cents in January against seven cents in December.

COCA COLA HAS GOOD SHOWING

New York, Jan. 15 (AP)—Wall Street anticipates a favorable showing for the Coca Cola Co. 1931 statement. Profits for the first nine months exceeded $10 a share and in brokerage circles, it is predicted that profits exceeding the 1930 record of $11.15 a share, will be shown.

The decrease in brokers' loans this week was considered too small to be of any special significance but many brokers were surprised that the loan account failed to show an increase, in view of the increase in stock market volume and talk of public participation on the buying side.

Try to Prevent Losses by Fire
Lives Saved and Accidents Avoided
Offers Prevention Service to All
Half Billion Dollar Yearly Toll

—By Frank F. Loomis—

Fire Insurance companies seek to prevent losses by fire. They point out the many dangers, show how these may be detected and how avoided, and invest large sums each year in this service.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters, the greatest private service organization supported by any industry, which is comprised of 200 stock fire insurance companies, furnishes a fire prevention service to the country at large that greatly enhances the safety of life and property and helps to bring about the reduction of rates which naturally follow the ratio of loss.

Fire insurance engineers suggest changes that will prevent or retard fires, a service that is of more importance to a nation than the mere passive payment of losses.

A large part of this work on the part of the fire insurance companies is a public service of which only a small percentage can produce a direct financial return to the companies sponsoring it; but in the very nature of their business insurance companies are well suited to perform this service and undertake it in the interest of public welfare.

• • •

Approximately a half billion dollars in property values in the year by toll of fire in the United States is a loss that would wipe out a vast number of homes and business enterprises, if there were no settlements, which make reconstruction possible. There are numerous cases where enterprises have been maintained solely through reimbursement by fire insurance payments, and the business enabled to continue.

Our enormous fire waste not only constitutes an ever present danger to life and property, but it has reached the proportion of an economic burden. When fire demolishes buildings, which are not rebuilt, as is often the case, the community has every reason to feel deeply the prorated over other properties.

Heavy losses naturally affect insurance rates adversely. This, for the reason that the insurance companies must necessarily collect sufficient funds in premiums to pay losses and cover their operating expenses. Since taxes and the cost of insurance protection enter into the overhead of every business, it is clear that our fire waste has become a factor of great importance in the expense of operating industry and in the cost of living.

The majority of fires are caused by carelessness . . . and it is every citizen's duty to help prevent fires. It is to your interest, personally, as well as because every dollar lost through fire adds to your own fire burden. You pay your share of it through higher insurance rates for rates and losses maintain a constant ratio.

• • •

Fire insurance companies today will inspect your property without charge for fire risk and give you valuable information about how to keep your property safe from fire. Such inspection encourages fire safety, discourages carelessness and keeps that rate on your property the fire protection, your fire insurance rate will be lower.

Your fire insurance agent should also know you and your property. Every time you make a change in the structural condition of your property, whether it is your business or your home, the value changes and your protection is affected. Your fire insurance policy must be changed accordingly.

Adequate fire insurance protection is essential . . . and your protection must be up to date. Your insurance coverage should be revised and adjusted to your present needs, and if your property has increased in value your insurance should be increased accordingly.

By refusing to take out additional fire insurance you are in danger of assuming a fire loss beyond the limits of your policy. Under-insured property is always a risk which proves costly in the end.

SPECTATOR—

Says:

With the market apparently well geared to its advanced price levels, a much mooted question at the moment has to do with the character of the rally currently being witnessed. In other words, the point of most concern to investors is whether the upturn is genuine or of the hand-made variety.

Two Sides

As to every matter of dispute in the financial district, there are two sides of opinion to the present question.

Those who hold to the belief that the recovery is more than a mere technical upturn against an overcrowded short interest point out that fundamental changes are at work here and throughout the present period from any other period in the bear market.

These fundamentals, it is held, all find a foundation in one general formula, namely, the stabilization of the efforts of the Federal Reserve System to stop deflation of panic proportions. It is stressed that it would have been impossible for the power of the Federal Reserve to stop deflation when prices were high, but with everything down to what may be considered rock-bottom levels, these efforts are doubly effective.

Distributing Market

Turning to the other side of the picture, there are interests, bearish at heart, who regard the current spell of activity on the upside as essentially a distributing market. In other words, these quarters hold that the rally is being maintained to permit banking interests and others to dispose of stocks at an opportune occasion.

However, chart students, who are either bullish or bearish according to their individual studies of the tape, are currently adherents to the bull side. To them, it makes little difference whether economic fundamentals are improving or will improve in nearby months. At the moment, the market's action is such as to expect further advance and, until developments occur to change the viewpoint, they look for lower recessions as in the direction of higher levels.

Bancamerica Asset Value $7 a Share

New York, Jan. 15—President Hunter S. Marston of Bancamerica-Blair Corp tells stockholders that he believes final figures for year ended Dec. 31 will show asset value of about $7 a share same as Sept. 30 when merger of Bank of America into National City Bank was arranged.

Skippy Solves Big Problem in Sunday's Advertiser

Fond parents—are you frequently annoyed by that otherwise adorable child of yours because the books he has been mislaid or the hat has disappeared or the pump for the bicycle tire is missing?

Well, in that respect you have plenty of company. For example SKIPPY, Percy Crosby's famous youngster who cavorts through the pages of Boston Sunday Advertiser and the Boston Evening American regularly, also has that juvenile weakness. For instance, next Sunday Skippy is going to miss his hat.

He will look every place under the sun except the right place—in the icebox and the furnace, in the clothes basket, and he will express as doubt as to his own existence. Once the conviction that there is a conspiracy afoot to hide the valuables headgear.

Finally, at his mother's suggestion, he will discover it. And where do you suppose? Right where it left it, of course. Which proves that even the most perfect the most adored among us, have their weaknesses.

Now then, here's the remedy and it should be as easy to take as any remedy that was ever prescribed for suffering parent or ailing youngster. Show Junior that Skippy page, and then when he's read it and absorbed it hang it on the wall in his room, where it will be sure to be seen several times a day. Remember, it's SKIPPY in the Boston Sunday Advertiser exclusively next Sunday. Don't miss it.

PROFIT-TAKING IS ABSORBED IN WALL ST.

New York, Jan. 15—The mid-month session today saw the New York Stock Exchange called on to absorb profit-taking, which made for irregularity. In the second period the general list managed to work slightly above its earlier lows.

Much of the profit-taking was centered in the railroad group, where there was also some selling, attributed to hitches in the carriers' wage negotiations.

GOODYEAR TAKES A JUMP

As trading progressed losses were point or more recessions for Union Pacific, Allied Chemical, American Can, American Telephone, Endicott-Johnson, American Tobacco "B", Commercial Solvents, International Business Machines, Grant and Auburn Auto.

The bond market was irregular as regarded active issues. U. S. Government obligations were slightly easier.

STERLING IS HIGHER

The British pound, profiting by the weight of demand between money rates here and in London, resumed its advance. Sterling cables were up 2 cents to $3.48¾.

Some brokers thought the market might be disappointed by the failure of the Reserve Bank to cut its rediscount rate and by the absence from the weekly statement of evidence that the easier credit policy had been launched.

It seemed probable, however, that the decline of $87,000,000 in total reserve credit, including a $61,000,000 drop in bill holdings, reflected the continued return of year-end credit to the banks.

Furthermore, the first step in the new policy—cutting the bill buying rate—was not taken until Tuesday and the statements are for the week ended Wednesday.

Currency circulation fell off $42,000,000 against a $70,000,000 rise in the previous week. This decrease was less than seasonal; in the same week of 1929 there was a shrinkage of $133,000,000.

Because brokers' loans were down in a week of advancing security prices, it was assumed that short covering on some outright buying had been the major factors in the advance.

CURB MARKET IS UNCERTAIN

New York, Jan. 15 (INS)—The curb market fluctuated in rather uncertain fashion in early dealings today, with confused profit-taking offsetting further constructive efforts to market prices at the opening for generally irregular changes throughout the list.

A number of the more volatile utility issues were inclined to be somewhat reactionary. Commonwealth Edison, for example, fell back 2¾ points to 116, while American Gas & Electric was down almost a point at 37¾. Electric Bond & Share, Brazil Traction and Associated Gas & Electric A were among the select category on chalk up nominal gains in the first hour.

Oils were inclined to ease off slightly, with Gulf off ¾ at 30½; and Standard of Kentucky off 2.25 in nominality at 133. Standard of Indiana met early support and was up ¼ at 46¾.

Specialties were dull and generally lower, with Aluminum off 1¾ at 86½; and A. O. Smith down 1 at 37¾.

Waldorf System Sales Up Slightly

Sales of the Waldorf System, Inc., in December amounted to $1,340,786, as against $1,336,201 in December, 1930, an increase of 3-10 of 1 per cent.

For the 12 months sales aggregated $13,541,768, as compared with $15,958,394 in the preceding 12 months, a decline of 2.6 per cent.

How Modern Women Lose Pounds of Fat Swiftly—Safely

Gain Physical Vigor — Youthfulness With Clear Skin and Vivacious Eyes That Sparkle With Glorious Health

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—in 4 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin is clearer—your eyes sparkle with glorious health—you feel younger in body—keener in mind. Kruschen will give any fat person a joyous surprise.

Get a bottle of Kruschen at—the cost is trifling and it lasts 4 weeks. If even this first bottle doesn't convince you this is the easiest, safest and surest way to lose fat—if you don't feel a superb improvement in health—so gloriously energetic—vigorously alive—your money gladly returned.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any druggists in the world.

STOP THAT COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

UNPLEDGED SLATE

According to talk in Essex County, it looks like an unpledged slate for delegates to the Democratic national convention, consisting of Michael J. McGrath of Salem, Mayor J. Leo Sullivan of Peabody, Mayor Michael A. Landers of Lawrence and Congressman William Connery of Lynn.

The Beast of the City

drink and after 45 cents had been collected he after let his customer sleep the effects off or tossed him through the door. One of his regular customers was Humpy the Mushroom, a pinch-faced, saffron-mugged weasel of the holes and dives of the docks.

Humpy the Mushroom sauntered into the place, nodded to two men with caps down over their eyes who were whispering in a table corner.

"Gimme a shot, Joe," he hoarsed, without sitting down and reaching out a grimy thin hand which trembled as with the ague. Joe looked at him without a word and reached out his paw. Humpy the Mushroom grinned and counted out two nickels and five pennies. He was just putting the glass to his lips when Fitzpatrick walked in. Without hesitating he went straight up to Humpy and knocked the glass from his hand.

"Come on, Mush!" he exclaimed. "There was a murder in the next room. Dirty-face Joe slunk back against the wall.

"Aw—I didn't do nothin'" whimpered Humpy.

"Just dryish—come on!" was the sharp command. Strong fingers closed around his emaciated arm and Humpy went out of the door unceremoniously. Outside, Ed hailed a cab, which seemed to be conveniently hovering near the curb. Humpy leaned back and grinned.

"That was big-time work—you takin' me out like that," admiringly chirped Humpy. "Got a eggie?"

"Never mind the gravy. What do you know about the Dopey job?" he asked.

"Well——" shrugged Humpy.

"Was there a dame mixed up in it?"

"Dey tell me Dopey was out wit some blond dame, but I don't know."

"Was she one o' the Belmonte mob?"

"Dat's what's goin' aroun' Dey say she was workin' in his office—but I don't t'ink she's workin' dere no more—get me?"

"Okay. What else?"

"Dey say de Belmonte crowd's plenty sore on your brudder. He better have peepers in de back of his head."

"What you mean?"

"Say," he said, his tone a whine again, "Dat guy Kelly—he'd ather me again for breakin' me parole. Tell him to lay off—eh?"

"All right, stool. But what else did you hear about my brother? Come clean or I'll get dirty."

"Now I'm goin' to let you put a block from headquarters and you stay away from that grappa dive tonight—hear?"

"Ain't you got a heck?" Humpy was whining again. "I gotta have me smoke. You spilled me smoke—"

"An' you didn't spill a thing. If I catch you holding out on me you won't go up the river—you'll go in the river . . . Scrum, scum!"

$1748 TO BARE FROG LOVE

Professor's Report Filled 44 Pages

Washington, Jan. 15 (INS)—That "frawg business" popped up again today.

Senator Harrison (D.) of Mississippi had a little joke at the expense of the Department of Commerce recently because it issued, among other pamphlets held of not vital import, a treatise relative to the romances of bullfrogs.

Now it develops that not only did the department's bureau of fisheries devote 44 pages of a annual report in 1921 to the bull frog situation, but it paid $1748 to a Cornell professor, Dr. A. H. Wright, to make a complete investigation of frogs and an exhaustive report to the department regarding frog family life.

It appeared that at the time a great furore had swept the country regarding bullfrogs. Somebody had started a story that bullfrog farms could be established to pay off the mortgage on the old place.

Martial Law in Hawaii

Safeguard the Honor of American Women

If our invertebrate Administration has anything that remotely resembles a spinal column it will:

1—Remove the civil authorities in Hawaii and declare martial law there.

3—Extend a full and free pardon to all Americans who have taken the only action against such outrages that Americans can take when civil justice breaks down.

This may seem a drastic program.

The revenge they inflict may be ugly, but there is one thing uglier—the deed that calls such revenge forth.

It can now do something, for a change, to PROTECT American women.

In a case like this Theodore Roosevelt would have had a battleship on the way to Hawaii within 24 hours.

He would have thrown out every politician and officeholder involved as soon as a cablegram could reach them.

He would have landed marines, cleaned the islands up, and kept them cleaned up.

Such quick and manly dealing is not to be expected from the present executive branch of our Government, because it seldom deals quickly or manfully with anything.

You would think, however, that even it would take some decisive steps to safeguard women, punish their violators and assure justice to their protectors.

People vs. Politicians

The People Are Generally Right

When Massachusetts politicians scold the people for not taking a greater interest in public affairs, they are scolding themselves. Even if they do not realize it.

The people can be relied upon to manifest a genuine and almost universal interest in the matters of their government, which are their own matters after all, when the politicians give them something to command their interest and approval.

The people demonstrated a great interest in automobile compulsory liability insurance, with the increase of rates from $21,000,000 to $23,500,000 annually.

But the Legislature, although called into special session and with no other issues to distract its attention, proved itself utterly incapable of doing anything in the matter. Except to vote a salary grab for itself of $112,000.

If this issue had been given to the people to decide, through the process of the Initiative and Referendum, they could have done no worse.

We now see a little group of unctuous reactionaries attempting to create a pre-primary convention system, the result of which would be to take more authority away from the people and to establish more power in the politicians through the return of the discredited convention system.

Representative Pratt of Saugus sought to liberalize the reactionary rules of the local House of Representatives by compelling its Rules Committee to act promptly upon important resolutions and orders, without dumping them into the mess of eleventh-hour legislation when the Legislature is ready to die on its feet.

His effort was not adopted. It was rejected by the House, by the leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties, because it sought to democratize legislation and because it would have relieved these little big-wigs of some of their secret power and influence.

If the political leaders want to encourage more interest in public affairs, they should set a good example themselves by mending some of their own ways.

They Buy in Boston

"Suburbanites may go to the corner store for groceries, but when they want a suit, a radio or the like they go into the city to buy," says he.

They believe they will find a greater variety of merchandise from which to select, good prices and bargains, and they have a belief in the quality of the goods to be obtained.

"The consistent newspaper advertising of the big stores, placed constantly before the eyes of suburbanites, especially the commuters, gives city stores a great advantage over their suburban competitors."

If you have something good, tell about it. It is an old truism. Professor Doherty finds it applies to retail sales as well as to everything else.

The Boston Evening American, with its huge circulation lead over any evening newspaper competitor in Greater Boston, offers the advertiser an ideal means of reaching the great audience of prospective buyers of merchandise.

No More Auto Taxes

They paid to the State in gas taxes $15,455,431, almost $5,000,000 more than in 1930.

Add to this the $21,000,000 in liability insurance fees, not to mention the millions paid in the property tax, registration fees, penalties and other forms of insurance.

In five years from the day a man bought his auto of average price, he has paid in taxes, fees and imposts and insurance as much as he paid for the car itself.

It is a time not to impose more nuisance fees but to relieve many of them.

LISTEN, WORLD!—ON MAGAZINE PAGE TODAY

Cut the Rope!

The two-thirds rule by which a minority can thwart the wishes of the majority and block the popular Party choice for the Presidential nomination in Democratic conventions is anti-democratic and against the best interests of the country and of the Democratic Party as well.

It insures bitter strife in national conventions.

It is a canon of defeat. Strange as it seems, the candidate who commands the support of a majority of the Democrats cannot obtain the nomination under this rule.

Police Suspect Notorious "Gyp Gang"

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—Thoughts while strolling: Who remembers when "What's the diff?" was a snappy comeback? That snow white streak, cockatoo-like, in the coiffure of the former Peggy Fears. Lily Pons and Betsy Drake look alike. And Dr. Leo Michel is a thin edition of Lew Fields.

George Olsen, a Portland, Ore., boy, who made good in the city. Pla s with cuss words for the New York trade and deleted for the Provinces. Mayor Walker and J. Wade McGrath have the nearest signatures in town. Muriel Kirkland, the Yonkers actress, with a rich southern accent.

Two of my favorite people—Gene Buck and Ward Morehouse. I never remember whether Sinclair Lewis' home town, Sauk Center, is in Minnesota or Wisconsin. Or if Wilson Mizner pronounces his last name Miz-ner or Mizz-ner. One word description of Harrison Fisher—grayish.

Sudden darkness. A flash of lightning dizzying across the sky. A clap of thunder and I'll bet the Sealyham is making a bee line for under the bed, the fraidy. Antoine, the Paris hair dresser, certainly gets a mess of publicity. Who wouldn't—wearing sandals and glass heels!

Something pleasa t about glowering restaurants, wistful souvenirs of long ago, with heavy footed Dutch waiters. And no music. Twenty years back euchre was raging. And casino was a sissy game. Wonder how many banquets the Times' Mr. Wiley attends in a year. The talented Irving Caesar suggests a tree owl.

Odd how a s gle play clings to an actress—Leonore Ulric as Kiki and Maude Adams as Peter Pan. Astonishingly pretty lassies wear Salvation Army costumes these days. Mark Connelly used to be thin as a rail. Now look! Ann Pennington looks Japanese in street clothes.

Official Announcer of Distinguished Guests. But no one yet touches Grover Whalen. When he greets them they stay greeted. Another "good guy"—Vehicle License Commissioner Harnett. Whatever became of Belle Storey?

* * *

True story of a theatrical banker. A producer hurried from Europe to put up $80,000 to prevent a Chicago mortgage foreclosure. He had tucked away $750,000 in gilt edged securities in a deposit box—jointly held by his brother, his wife and self. Going to the vault from the pier he found the box empty. He actually fainted. His brother could not fathom the dilemma and sent for his wife, who came white-fac and repentant. Caught in the furore of margin gambling she had drained the box in desperate effort t. recoup.

* * *

A minor depression racket is exploited by a lesser genius who carries in his pocket a dead cockroach. After dining sumptuously in various restaurants, he leave a few tidbits under which to slip the insect. Then he calls the head waiter, points out the offense in high dudgeon. At length he agrees to leave without spreading tales. And, of course, the management could not think of a charge.

From an editorial: "Columning became a vogue and all vogues pass. One of them who professes experness in magic may soon be turning to that for a livelihood."

They live in modest houses and they work from day to day
And the papers never notice what they do or what they say,
They believe in God and serve Him, and you'll notice as a rule

Why Not an 'American Way' for Americans?

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Boston Evening American.

WE ARE BEGINNING to get more light on the "American way," where the supreme problem of the nation is to prevent starvation and the deprivation of childhood of the food necessary for health. The City of New York is to be forced, in getting a loan from the bankers who floated the Peruvian and German securities, to reduce its expenditures to minimize the human misery.

Of the most vital of national problems, involving the lives of women and children, the National Government is to be permitted to wash its hands. "Billions for Europe, but not one cent for starving Americans"—for that is "the American way."

The duty of preventing suffering and starvation must be assumed by the local governmental units; and when these reach the end of their resources, as so many have, or are compelled by the bankers to shut down on local relief, the National Government will do nothing.

Since private charity is not a drop in the bucket, starvation will not be prevented by individual contributions. In September, in the case of 81 of our largest cities, 77 per cent of all relief has come from the local treasury. Had these 81 cities done nothing, but 23 per cent of the relief given would have been granted.

Out of this comes one fact—that people out of jobs because of no fault of their own, and their women and children, must suffer and starve.

Float a National Prosperity Loan

It is also demanded by some of the bankers that cities furnishing jobs by needed permanent public improvements must shut down on these. This can mean but one thing—the increase of the army of the unemployed. And this means an accession to the ranks of the hungry. And it also means a reduction in the purchasing power of the people when the whole problem of the return of prosperity depends on the restoration of purchasing power.

There is just one way out of this, and that is the floating of a national prosperity loan to put millions to work on wages to be spent with merchants.

But the Administration is against this plan—or any plan that goes directly to the relief of millions of breadwinners who have been denied the right to work. And this, we believe, too, is "the American plan."

But the "American plan," as understood by the Administration, has many ramifications. We have just heard of the "American plan" for the disposal of foreign securities among American investors—and it is a bit startling.

It appears that in the case of the Peruvian loan, the bankers with the positive aid of the Government, "rigged the market," and that $100,000,000 in securities were sold to the people.

It seems that the loan was to mean so much to the bankers that they paid a commission to the son of the late unlamented Peruvian President of more than $400,000.

Then, it seems, that when the commercial attache at Lima informed the Department of Commerce that it was unwise to make the loan, and the State Department knew about it, too, he was rebuked for not sending in an "optimistic report."

The agent of the bankers that floated the loan warned them that Peru would probably default within five years, and the purchasers of the bonds would be lucky to collect ten cents on the dollar.

But with the encouragement of the Administration, resenting a warning to the purchasing public, the loan was floated—and is in default.

And Who Are the Voters?

Meanwhile, with Congress on record against transferring the debts of 14 nations to the backs of American taxpayers, the advocates of the transfer are growing contemptuous of "the politicians and the voters" in this country. We may dismiss the politicians—who, by the way, could not possibly make a worse mess of things than the bankers—since they seek to conform to the will of these contemptible "voters."

And who are the "voters"? They are the American people.

They are the American people who are to be asked to take over the debts of France, for example, and pay them out of their own pockets.

They are the Americans who are asked to submit to increased taxation to the tune of billions so that Frenchmen and Belgians and others may not have to submit to taxation to pay their debts.

But the representatives of the bankers, writing and speaking, have nothing but disdain for all of us who cannot understand why it is contemptible in us, after having scaled down the foreign debts by billions, to object to paying all the debt due our people by the 14 nations.

It is easy to understand the fury of the spokesman of the international bankers: if the debtor nations can pass their financial obligations on to the American people, it will be easier for the bankers to collect on their bad foreign loans.

The "Liquidation of the War"

We hear constantly that the way to prosperity and peace is to wipe out the war obligations everywhere and start all over again. Germany will refuse to pay reparations; the other European nations will refuse to pay the debts they owe the United States; but will the United States then refuse to pay the billions it borrowed to loan to the nations that are to be released? Not at all. A real wiping out of the war obligations means that the U. S. bonds sold to the people to get money to make the loans to Europe, must go, too.

Absurd?

Not so absurd. Not long ago, in Italy, the Government invited the holders of certain bonds to make a sacrifice by surrendering their bonds for a street bonfire, and they responded. It might be tried here. We have a very few of these bonds and agree to give them to the fire. Where are the others? Will their owners make this patriotic sacrifice to put the world on its feet again?

They will not. They will not, because the major part of these bonds are in possession of the institutions that are asking the transfer of the European debts to all the American people so they can collect on their private loans. Thus it all comes to this: We may end reparations, with which we have nothing to do, and forgive the debts, and then pay all the debts ourselves—and call it the "liquidation of the war."
